Description of refused application

On 19 July 2018, the Independent Planning Commission (the Commission) refused development consent for the Eastern Creek Energy from Waste Facility (SSD-6236). The refused application involved the construction and operation of a large-scale energy from waste facility that would thermally treat 552,500 tonnes per annum of unrecyclable non-putrescible residual waste from Sydney-based recycling facilities, primarily from construction and demolition, commercial and industrial, and floc sources.

Description of amended application

In January 2019, The Next Generation (NSW) Pty Ltd lodged an appeal against the Commission's refusal in the Land and Environment Court of NSW. As part of the appeal process the Court has allowed The Next Generation to amend its application to remove floc waste from the waste to be processed at the facility.
