

Burning coal is bad for everyone and we have to replace it with something very soon. Wind power is readily available and building a wind farm will provide a much needed boost to the small communities of Walcha and Uralla.

I am ninety six years old, born and bred in Walcha and have very strong ties to the area. Also, I have been an asthmatic for almost my entire life so am very concerned about air quality and the burning of coal.

My forebears from Walcha were hard working progressive people. The current people of Walcha and Uralla need to follow in their footsteps and embrace the opportunity of the Winterbourne Wind Project.
