Glenmore Solar Farm.

I fully support the proposal for the solar farm at Glenmore. I believe that the provision of green electricity produced on this site is an essential service for the wider community.

I am unimpressed with the arguments of those suggesting that agricultural production trumps other forms of land use. We have all witnessed agriculture making way for more important needs such as residential land, small aerodromes, sport and recreation, schools and colleges, commercial premises and forestry in our region. Green electricity is as important as all these.

The solar farm is privately funded and includes battery storage which qualifies it as base load power.

Solar farms are an important part of the global decarbonisation movement and I believe each region should play their part.

Yours sincerely
James S. Davis.
