

05/12/2022

Why in God's name would anybody want to ruin prime agricultural land capable of producing an income and cover it with bloody solar panels beggars' belief because, as far as I know, God's not making any more land. There is a simple solution to this problem – by going east and putting the bloody things on top of the hill and knock a few trees down, which nobody wants. But I can hear now the Greens saying "Not in my paddock." I don't want scenic views of shiny stupid solar panels.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]