

I object to Central West Orana REZ Transmission

Comments:

It seems to me that the government is continually preaching to landholders about creating 'green' corridors for our native wildlife and vegetation of which we MUST comply. Admittedly most people want to preserve these cherished faunas and floras. It ~~be~~ then beggars belief that the big corporations can then justify removing large chunks of the very thing they say we must preserve. How can it be justified? Removing large areas of native woodland which then has the add on effect of destroying the habitat of native wildlife seems hypocritical to me. I have heard that this is viewed as collateral damage for the greater good. Who has the right to deem this environmental destruction of our beautiful valley as part of the greater good? Clearly not the landholders and residents of our beautiful valley.
