You need power for Sydney. Why not put the towers on the edge of Sydney instead of building them out here, where we don't want them? Put them off-shore where they are not directly affecting anyone's home environment. It really does seem more logical as our major population centres are on the coast.

I have travelled over a lot of our planet and the beauty of sunsets from the southern side of the Abercrombie River is comparable with any I have seen. It would be such a shame to ruin this glorious part of Australia.

The wildlife of this area is also rather wonderful. There are huge eagles often to be seen soaring along the top of the ridges and lovely little lyrebirds flutter across the roads in the early mornings. These need to be preserved.
