I wish to register a strong objection to this project. We all understand that we must make way for progress, but this project is completely out of step with its surroundings.

All the buildings from 200 William Street to Palmer Street are no higher than 7 stories, usually much less, apart from one at 9 stories.

A huge 18-story building in the middle of all this would be a mistake akin to the Blues Point Tower monstrosity.

Besides being out of place with its surrounding, it would create many significant problems due to its awkward location. These include privacy, the neighbours right to quiet enjoyment, wind funnelling, and since there is very poor access, it would also pose special danger to pedestrians and children, and it would create major traffic problems. I would also note that when plans for this building were last submitted, they were for a 10-story building. That was already unacceptable since the building is at the high end of William Street, near Kings Cross.

How can we now be looking at plans for an 18-story building with a huge footprint? It does not make sense.

If this does go ahead, it would grant an extraordinary favour to the developers, at the expense of every other stake holder and the local community at large.
