North Sydney is desperately short of open space. The Graythwaite estate is glorious - I knew it well when my brother was resident in the nursing home, and I know what it meant to the Graythwaite residents and the citizens of North Sydney. Shore's plans are excessive - and only the beginning of what they might do in the end. We need an enquiry into how this situation was allowed to come about. Is this New South Wales continuing to demonstrate how to come in last among Australian State Governments?
