EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Assessment Report (ACHAR) has been prepared by Artefact Heritage (Artefact) to accompany a State Significant Development Application (SSDA) for the staged construction and operation of an industrial estate comprising four warehouse buildings at 253-267 Aldington Road, Kemps Creek, NSW 2178 in the Penrith City Council Local Government Area (LGA). The site is legally described as Lot 9 in Deposited Plan 253503.

This report has been prepared to address the Secretary's Environmental Assessment Requirements (SEARs) issued for the project (SSD-23480429) dated 30 July 2021 and additional SEARs issued on 25 March 2022.

This report concludes that the proposed industrial estate is suitable and warrants approval subject to the implementation of the following mitigation measures as listed in recommendations.

Consultation

Aboriginal community consultation has been conducted in accordance with the Aboriginal cultural heritage consultation requirements for proponents 2010 (Consultation Requirements) (Department of Environment, Climate Change and Water [DECCW] 2010b). A consultation log has been maintained which details all correspondence with the Registered Aboriginal Parties (RAPs) for the project.

Overview of findings

The following results and recommendations are based on consideration of:

- The requirements of Aboriginal heritage guidelines:
 - The ACHAR guide (OEH 2011a)
 - The Code of Practice from the Department of Environment, Climate Change and Water (DECCW 2010a)
 - Consultation Requirements (DECCW 2010b)
- SEARS SSD-23480429
- The results of the background research and archaeological survey results
- The likely impacts of the proposed development

This assessment has found that no Aboriginal sites were identified in the study area due to the historical widespread ground disturbance of the site for pastoral and agricultural use, including diverting natural water courses for establishing market gardens. There are no Aboriginal archaeological constraints for the development.

Recommendation

Based on the results of this assessment and in accordance with Aboriginal heritage guidelines mandated in the SEARS for the project, the following recommendations are made:

- Should Aboriginal objects be identified during ground disturbing works, the following protocol should be enacted:

- All work must immediately cease in, and around, the location of the unexpected find
- The contractor supervisor must notify the environmental manager for the project, and a qualified archaeologist must be contacted to assess the provenance and significance of the find
- Should the find be an Aboriginal object, further consultation with RAPs, assessment and approval may be required before works can continue in that area.
- Any changes to the project construction footprint outside of the current study area may require further Aboriginal assessment

Following the implementation of the above mitigation measures, the remaining impacts are appropriate.

1.2 The Site

The site is known as 253 - 267 Aldington Road, Kemps Creek and is legally described as Lot 9 in Deposited Plan 253503. The site is rectangular in shape with an area of approximately 10 hectares.

The site has a primary frontage along its eastern boundary to Aldington Road of 160m and a depth of 630m. The site is currently occupied by a dwelling house, sheds and agricultural land as shown in the aerial photograph at Figure 1 below.

The site is undulating in parts but longitudinally falls slightly from Aldington Road at an RL 54.00 to the western boundary with an RL 44.00 which equates to an average grade of 1.5% or 1V in 65H. The site also falls across the site from north to south at 4.3% or 1V in 23H.

The site is burdened by a 60.96m wide Transgrid easement which runs north-south through the site. The easement is known as 'Dapto – Sydney West 330kV Easement' and there is presently no high voltage transmission line infrastructure present.

The site is approximately 5 kilometres (km) north-east of the future Western Sydney International (Nancy-Bird Walton) Airport, 14 km south-east of Penrith CBD and 38 km west of the Sydney CBD.

The site is located within the suburb of Kemps Creek, which falls within the Penrith Local Government Area (LGA). It is in the Mamre Road Precinct within the broader WSEA and is currently surrounded by rural residential land uses.

Multiple SSDs and Local DAs are currently being progressed for industrial and warehouse development within the Mamre Road Precinct which will substantially change the nature of the surrounding area. The regional context is shown in Figure 1 below.

The surrounding land uses include:

- North: Pastoral/ farmland extends towards the elevated Bakers Lane. Several properties have been purchased by developers for industrial development these include Frasers and Fife Stockland.
- South: Farm and pastoral lands with rural residential properties scattered within the landscape. The Mamre Road precinct extends further beyond Abbots Road. A locally listed heritage item is located at 282 Aldington Road to the south east.
- East: The site is bound to the east by Aldington Road. On the opposite side of Aldington Road several properties have been purchased in seeking approval for industrial development. Land rises to the east which provides a natural screen to the residential E4 Environmental Living zone beyond.
- West: Farm and pastoral lands to Mamre Road and beyond. Sites on Mamre Road have been purchased for industrial uses.

All land in the immediate surrounding context to the north, east and south has now been zoned for industrial uses.

1.2.1 Local context of the project

The study area is situated in the central Cumberland Plain, approximately 40 kilometres (km) inland from the Sydney CBD. The nearest permanent water source is Kemps Creek, located 0.45km to the southwest. Numerous ephemerals or seasonal waterways and waterbodies are present in the closer surrounds of the study area. The study area is within a landscape that is generally undulating with rolling low hills.

1.3 Purpose and scope of the report

Artefact Heritage has been engaged to prepare an Aboriginal heritage assessment for inclusion in the project EIS. This technical paper considers the construction impacts on Aboriginal cultural heritage and potential archaeological resources within the study area and includes:

- Assessment of the Aboriginal cultural heritage values of the study area and identification of any specific areas of cultural significance
- Assessment of archaeological potential for the study area
- Aboriginal stakeholder consultation
- Preparation of a methodology for archaeological management including test excavation and salvage where required.

1.4 Report methodology

The methodology to prepare the ACHAR included the following:

- defining a study area
- undertaking background research on the Aboriginal archaeological and historical context of the study area and surrounds, including:
 - o reviewing previous studies/investigations
 - o searching the NSW Aboriginal Heritage Information Management System (AHIMS) database and State Heritage Inventory (SHI) to identify existing registered Aboriginal heritage sites
- Documenting the results of an archaeological survey undertaken in accordance with the Code of Practice For Archaeological Investigation of Aboriginal Objects in NSW (DECCW 2010) (see Section 6.0 for more details on the survey methodology)
- undertaking consultation with relevant Government agencies and local Aboriginal stakeholders in accordance with legislative requirement and the Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Consultation Requirements for Proponents (DECCW, 2010) (see section 3.0 for more information on the consultation process)
- undertaking an impact assessment of the direct/indirect (including cumulative impacts) to Aboriginal heritage for the study area
- providing recommendations and mitigation measures to minimise impacts to Aboriginal heritage

This report was prepared by John Sokalik (Heritage Consultant). Management input and review was provided by Duncan Jones (Principal) and Sandra Wallace (Managing Director).

2.0 LEGISLATIVE CONTEXT

2.1 Introduction

There are several pieces of legislation that are relevant to the assessment of Aboriginal cultural heritage for the project. This chapter provides a summary of these Acts and the potential implications for the project.

2.2 NSW National Parks and Wildlife Act 1974

The National Parks and Wildlife Act (NPW Act) provides statutory protection to all Aboriginal places and objects. An Aboriginal Place is declared by the Minister, under Section 84 of the NPW Act in recognition of its special significance with respect to Aboriginal culture. Under Section 86 of the NPW Act Aboriginal objects and Aboriginal Places are protected. An Aboriginal object is defined as:

any deposit, object or material evidence (not being a handicraft made for sale) relating to the Aboriginal habitation of the area that comprises New South Wales, being habitation before or concurrent with (or both) the occupation of that area by persons of non-Aboriginal extraction and includes Aboriginal remains.

The protection provided to Aboriginal objects applies irrespective of the level of their significance or issues of land tenure. However, areas are only gazetted as Aboriginal places if the Minister is satisfied that sufficient evidence exists to demonstrate that the location was and/or is of special significance to Aboriginal culture.

There are no gazetted Aboriginal places in the study area. All Aboriginal objects, whether recorded or not are protected under the NPW Act.

As the project is subject to assessment under Section 4.12(8) of the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act, 1979, Schedule 2 of the Environmental Planning and Assessment Regulation 2000, permits issued under the NPW Act are not required.

2.2.1 National Parks and Wildlife Regulation 2019

Under the authority of the NPW Act, the National Parks and Wildlife Regulation 2019 provides regulations for Aboriginal heritage assessment and consultation with registered Aboriginal parties.

Part 5 (Division 2) of the National Parks and Wildlife Regulation sets out the requirements of a due diligence assessment process and provides requirements for more detailed assessment and consultation with registered Aboriginal parties for activities that may result in harm to Aboriginal objects. This includes:

- Clause 60 – consultation process to be carried out before application for Aboriginal heritage impact permit
- Clause 61 – application for Aboriginal heritage impact permit to be accompanied by cultural heritage assessment report.

To comply with Clause 60 and 61 of the National Parks and Wildlife Regulation 2019, preparation of an ACHAR and consultation with registered Aboriginal parties must be in accordance with the following guidelines:

- Code of Practice (DECCW 2010a)
- ACHAR guidelines (OEH 2011a)
- Consultation guidelines (DECCW 2010b).

Assessment and consultation carried out in accordance with Part 5 of the National Parks and Wildlife Regulation 2019 and associated requirements would result in harm to Aboriginal objects. The current assessment has been carried out in accordance with the above guidelines to meet the SEARs.

2.3 NSW Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979

The EP&A Act provides planning controls and requirements for environmental assessment in the development approval process. The EP&A Act consists of three main parts of direct relevance to Aboriginal cultural heritage; Part 3 which governs the preparation of planning instruments, Part 4 which relates to development requiring consent, and Part 5 which relates to activity that does not require consent.

The project is subject to assessment and approval by the NSW Minister for Planning and Public Spaces under Part 4 Division 4.7 of the EP&A Act, which establishes an assessment and approval regime for SSD.

An EIS supported by the current assessment has been prepared to assess the impacts of the project, in accordance with SEARs.

Section 4.12(8) of the EP&A Act provides that environmental planning instruments (such as local environmental plans and SEPPs) do not, with some exceptions, apply to SSD projects. Notwithstanding, the environmental planning instruments that are relevant to the project have been considered for consistency, as described below.

2.3.1 Penrith City Council Local Environmental Plan 2010

Local Environmental Plans (LEPs) are prepared by councils in accordance with the EP&A Act to guide planning divisions for LGAs.

The aim of LEPs in relation to heritage is to conserve the heritage significance are also listed within this schedule.

The study area falls within the boundaries of Penrith City Council LGA. No Aboriginal places of heritage significance were identified on The Penrith City Council Local Environmental Plan 2010 (Penrith LEP) within the study area.

2.4 NSW Aboriginal Land Rights Act 1983

The Aboriginal Land Rights Act 1983 is administered by the NSW Department of Human Services - Aboriginal Affairs. This Act established Aboriginal Land Councils (at State and local levels). These bodies have a statutory obligation under the Act to:

- Take action to protect the culture and heritage of Aboriginal persons in the council's area, subject to any other law
- Promote awareness in the community of the culture and heritage of Aboriginal persons in the council's area.

The study area is located within the Deerubbin LALC boundaries.

2.5 NSW Native Title Act 1994

The Native Title Act 1994 was introduced to work in conjunction with the Commonwealth Native Title Act. Native Title claims, registers and Indigenous Land Use Agreements are administered under the Act.

No Native Title Claims within the study area were identified on the National Native Title Tribunal Native Title Vision mapping service.

2.6 Commonwealth Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation Act 1999

The Environment and Heritage Legislation Amendment Act (No. 1) 2003 amends the Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation Act 1999 (EPBC Act) to include 'national heritage' as a matter of national environmental significance and protects listed places to the fullest extent under the Constitution. It also establishes the National Heritage List and the Commonwealth Heritage List.

The Australian Heritage Council Act 2003 establishes a new heritage advisory body – the Australian Heritage Council – to the Minister for the Environment and Energy and retains the Register of the National Estate.

The Australian Heritage Council (Consequential and Transitional Provisions) Act 2003 repeals the Australian Heritage Commission Act 1975, amends various Acts because of this repeal and allows the transition to the current heritage system.

Together the above three Acts provide protect for Australia's natural, Indigenous, and non-Indigenous heritage. The new framework includes:

- A new National Heritage List of places of national heritage significance
- A new Commonwealth Heritage List of heritage places owned or managed by the Commonwealth
- The creation of the Australian Heritage Council, an independent expert body to advise the Minister on the listing and protection of heritage places
- Continued management of the non-statutory Register of the National Estate.

2.6.1 National Heritage List

The National Heritage List is a list of places with outstanding heritage value to our nation, including places overseas. So important are the heritage values of these places that they are protected under the EPBC Act. This means that a person cannot take an action that has will have, or is likely to have, a significant impact on the national heritage values of a national heritage place without the approval of the Australian Government Minister for the Environment.

There are no items listed on the National Heritage List located within the study area for this assessment.

2.6.2 Commonwealth Heritage List

The Commonwealth Heritage List is a list of places managed or owned by the Australian Government.

There are no items listed on the Commonwealth Heritage List located within the study area for this assessment. Aboriginal community participation

3.0 ABORIGINAL COMMUNITY PARTICIPATION

3.1 Aboriginal consultation

Aboriginal community consultation has been conducted in accordance with the Consultation Requirements.

A consultation log has been maintained which details all correspondence with the registered Aboriginal parties for the project.

The consultation was closed off and was lapsed following the ACHAR accompanying the SSDA submission. As a general rule, gaps in the consultation process of 6 months or more will not constitute a continuous consultation process (OEH 2011b). In accordance with the Aboriginal cultural heritage consultation requirements for proponents 2010 (the Consultation Requirements) Stage 4.1.2 an email was sent to reasonable sources of information identified in Section 3.3.1.1 on 18 October 2023 requesting details of Aboriginal people who may hold cultural knowledge. Artefact placed an advertisement in The Western Weekender newspaper on 27 October 2023 in accordance with Stage 4.1.3.

In October 2023, Aboriginal community consultation is reinstated by requesting knowledge holders identification by government agencies.

3.2 Original ACHAR Consultation

3.2.1.1 Identification of stakeholders and registrations of interest

In accordance with Stage 4.1.2 of the Consultation Requirements, correspondence was sent to the following organisations on 22 October 2020 requesting details of Aboriginal people who may hold cultural knowledge relevant to determining the Aboriginal significance of Aboriginal objects and/or places within the study area.

- Heritage NSW, The Department of Premier and Cabinet (formerly the Office of Environment and Heritage [OEH])
- The Registrar, Aboriginal Land Rights Act 1983
- Deerubbin Local Aboriginal Land Council (Deerubbin LALC)
- National Native Title Tribunal
- Penrith Local Council
- Greater Sydney Local Land Services.

In accordance with Stage 4.1.3 of the Aboriginal cultural heritage consultation requirements for proponents 2010, Artefact placed an advertisement in The Western Weekender newspaper on 28 May 2021. The advertisement invited all Aboriginal persons and organisations who hold cultural knowledge relevant to determining the significance of Aboriginal objects and places in the study area to register their interest.

In accordance with Stage 4.1.3, letters and/or emails were sent on 27 May 2021 to all Aboriginal persons and organisations identified through responses from the agencies contacted during Stage 4.1.2. The letters provided details on the location and nature of the project, as well as an invitation to register as an Aboriginal stakeholder. Fourteen days were allowed for registrations.

Following the completion of Stages 4.1.2 and 4.1.3, a total of 16 stakeholder groups had registered their interest in the consultation process. Two stakeholders requested that their names be withheld. The remaining groups include:

4.0 ENVIRONMENTAL CONTEXT

4.1 Geology and soils

The study area is located within the Cumberland Plain, which is characterised by an undulating landscape of rolling hills and prominent rises. The geology of the study area is characterised by the Triassic Wianamatta Liverpool Sub-Group. The Liverpool Sub-Group comprises Bringelly Shale over Hawkesbury Sandstone and Ashfield Shale and consists of shale and some sandstone beds and outcrops. Local relief is between 10 m and 50 m with undulating slopes of less than ten per cent (Bryan 1966).

Soils across the study area consist of the residual Blacktown soil landscape (eSPADE 2016). The Blacktown soil landscape is typified by shallow duplex soils over a clay base. The biomantle is underlain by heavily textured subsoil with a depth of generally less than a metre, and most commonly less than 30 cm. The archaeological implications of this soil landscape are that intact deposits are likely to occur in the A horizon, which is generally up to 30 cm in depth, and that stratigraphic potential would be limited. The Blacktown soil landscape is generally associated with gently undulating rises.

4.2 Landforms and hydrology

The study area is characterised by rolling plains and undulating hills. It encompasses slope, ridge, and crest landform contexts. The region has a dense drainage network of generally north flowing channels and dams. The nearest major watercourses are Kemps Creek, approximately 500 m to the southwest, and South Creek, approximately 1800 m to the west.

A second order tributary of the Kemps Creek flows through the study area. Areal imagery from 1947 demonstrates that this tributary continued through the study area westwards with a point of confluence occurring approximately 550 m to the southwest (see Figure 3). Over the years this tributary creek has been heavily modified by creating three dams within the study area and cutting off the creeks original flow to Kemps Creek. Disturbance and archaeological potential associated with this second order creek area further discussed in Sections 5.4.1, 7.2.2 and 7.2.3.

4.3 Vegetation

The study area would once have been covered by open Cumberland Plain Woodland, which is typical of the Wianamatta Group shale geology. Tree species would have included Forest Red Gum (Eucalyptus tereticornis), and Grey Box (E. moluccana) (Benson and Howell 1990).

It is likely that the Darug people practiced a mobile subsistence land-use strategy due to seasonal availability of resources, which necessitated movement or trade (Attenbrow 2010: 78). Aboriginal people hunted kangaroo and wallaby and snared possums for food and skins. In marine or estuarine environments Aboriginal people caught fish and collected shellfish. There are many accounts by Europeans of Aboriginal people in canoes on rivers and the ocean, fishing and cooking the fish on small fires within the vessels (e.g., Collins 1798).

Plants were an important source of nutrition, common edible species being Macrozamia, a cycad palm with poisonous seeds that were detoxified and ground into a paste, and Xanthorrhoea, or grass tree. The grass tree nectar was a high-energy food, the resin strong hafting glue, and the flower spikes used for spear barbs.

From observations by early European colonists, only about 20 species of plant are identified as being used for food or manufacture by Aboriginal people of the Sydney region (Attenbrow 2010: 41). It is likely this is only a fraction of what was used.

4.4 European history and land use

The earliest land grants within the study area were granted to Nicholas Bayly from 1810, with the study area being located in his 1070 acre grant, one of many (see Figure 2). The study area is located within the Parish of Melville, County of Cumberland and the first grants were granted from 1805 by Governor Philip Gidley King.

Early parish maps show Nicholas Bayly was also granted two more substantial holdings to the west of the study area from 1805 to 1810, bringing his total holding in the area to around 2500 acres. Each of Bayly's grants had a different name – the western grants were known as Bayly Park and Kings Dawn, while the eastern grants were known as Razeville and containing the study area, Macquarie Place (Penrith History, n.d). At different times it would appear Bayly Park was used to refer to the entire 2500 acre holding; however, it is known that the 550 acre grant known as Bayly Park was the most developed grant during Bayly's initial tenure, containing the main homestead residence.

The study area on Aldington Road is in the southwestern part of the 1070-acre Macquarie Place (see Figure 2). There is no record suggesting that Bayly built or substantially developed Macquarie Place or Razeville or utilised these properties for early agricultural attempts, with all evidence suggesting that Bayly Park became Bayly's main country estate.

Bayly Park passed to the ownership of Richard Jones in 1826 and the estate was renamed Fleurs, and again passed ownership to Samuel Lyons in the 1840s. Whilst both owners engaged in pastoral activities, there is no evidence that these activities occurred outside the original Bayly Park.

In 1852 Fleurs was put to auction and described as a “princely estate” containing the “best land in the country of Cumberland”, the advertisement states that 1573 of 1823 acres were cleared and stumped, and that the sale was for thirteen subdivided lots within the estate unless one buyer purchased the entire estate (Empire, 1852). This means that following Jones’ sale of the property in the 1840s, and its subsequent acquisition by a new owner (FO Durvell), part of the land (approximately 680 acres) had been sold off. The exact whereabouts of this land is once more unclear but given the closeness of this number of acres to one of the original grants (the 680 acre Kings Down) it seems likely that this was the land which had been transferred to a new owner.

Ownership of the land was transferred several times in the second half of the 19th century. In 1888 it was subdivided into 20 acre ‘farm and orchard blocks’. The rural allotments were described as “ready for the plough”. By 1895 Mamre Road had been constructed, effectively separating the smaller 550-acre Bayly Park estate in two portions. The original homestead was located to the west of Mamre Road, with the subject site substantially to the east. The subdivision advertisements do not reference the total amount of 20-acre lots to be sold, but it is assumed they were contained in the 550-acre Bayly Park estate given their “main road frontages” and the contemporaneous construction of Mamre road through the estate. The subdivision advertisement also shows that the land adjoining the Fleurs Estate – the former Macquarie Place grant representing part of the subject site – was at that time owned by a Mr McMinn and occupied by a Mr Griffiths.

Fleurs Estate retained its rural and agricultural nature through the twentieth century, with the gradual emergence and distinction of the Kemp’s Creek region, proximate to the hubs of St Mary’s and Penrith. Kemps Creek continued to be predominately associated with pastoral grazing, with the later rise of turf farming, market gardening and other speciality crops (Biosis, 2020: 18).

The earliest aerial imagery of the site dates to 1947 (see Figure 3) and clearly indicates that the land around and within the study area had been significantly cleared of native vegetation forming paddocks, with no signs of any present or former substantial development, cultivation, or construction activities. The study area may have been used for grazing.

By 1965 the aerial imagery demonstrates that the pre-existing creek had been heavily modified with portions being significantly widened particularly in the northeast of the study area and the creation of four dams (see Figure 4). The land appears to have been utilised at this point for pastoral purposes. Imagery from 1975 suggests that the land was dominated by open paddock most likely still utilised for pastoral purposes however, two of the four dams had been filled in. By 1984 the land appears much the same however, a large third dam had been installed within the eastern portion the study area (see Figure 5). These three dams remain today in the study area and were recorded during the site inspection.

A residence was erected on 253-267 Aldington Road between 1987 and 1991, as aerials from those years depict the emergence of a house (see Figure 6). Two buildings existed within the study area prior to the above dates. A small structure that was most likely a shed was constructed in 1978 approximately 60 m west of where the property now stands and by 1984 another shed was constructed approximately 15 m to the east of where the property now stands.

Today the land within the study area is shown to be largely comprised of low-midslopes dominating most of the northern, north-western and eastern portions of the study area with the latter being a heavily modified low slope. The southern and southwestern portions of the study area have been shown to be quite flat. There is a small concentration of trees to the northeast of the study area along the creek. The remainder of the study area has been mostly cleared of all trees and has been dominated by market gardens since 1991 (see Figure 6).

5.0 ARCHAEOLOGICAL AND ETHNOGRAPHIC CONTEXT

5.1 Ethnographic and historical evidence

Traditional Aboriginal tribal boundaries within Australia have primarily been reconstructed based on surviving linguistic evidence and are therefore only approximations. Social interaction, tribal boundaries and linguistic evidence may not always correlate, and it is likely that boundaries and interaction levels varied over time. The language group spoken on the Cumberland Plain is known as Darug (Dharruk – alternative spelling). This term was used for the first time in 1900 by Matthews & Everitt (Mathews & Everitt 1900: 265). The Darug language group is thought to have extended from Appin in the south to the Hawkesbury River, west of the Georges River, Parramatta, the Lane Cove River and to Berowra Creek (Attenbrow 2010:34). This area was home to several different groups throughout the Cumberland Plain.

The study area has been identified by some as located near the boundaries of two Aboriginal language groups, Dharawal and Gundungurra (Tindale 1974). The Dharawal are placed in the area from the south side of Botany Bay and Port Hacking to north of the Shoalhaven River and inland to Campbelltown, Camden, and Bargo. They are thought to have ranged further north into the Liverpool region; the boundaries defined today can only be used as indicative (Attenbrow 2010). The Gundungurra are described as occupying the southern rim of the Cumberland Plain, west of the Georges River, including a boundary area with the Dharawal in the Camden and Bargo locality.

British colonisation had a profound and devastating effect on the Aboriginal population of the Sydney region, including Darug speakers. In the early days of the colony, Aboriginal people were disenfranchised from their land as the British claimed areas for settlement and agriculture. The colonists, often at the expense of the local Aboriginal groups, also claimed resources such as pasture, timber, fishing grounds and water sources. Overall, the devastation of the Aboriginal culture did not come about through war with the British, but instead through disease and forced removal from traditional lands. It is thought that during the 1789 smallpox epidemic over half of the Aboriginal people of the Sydney region died. The disease spread west to the Darug of the Cumberland Plain and north to the Hawkesbury. It may have in fact spread much further afield, over the Blue Mountains (Butlin 1983). This loss of life meant that some of the Aboriginal groups who lived away from the coastal settlement of Sydney may have disappeared entirely before Europeans could observe them or record their clan names (Karskens 2010: 452).

It was not until rural settlement began in the western Cumberland Plain, around 1791 however, that the colonists and Aboriginal people came face to face. Relations quickly disintegrated, and tensions over land and resources spilled over. Governor King sanctioned the shooting of Aboriginal people in a General Order made in 1801. Intermittent killings on both sides continued for over 15 years, including the Appin massacre and attacks at South Creek in 1816 (Karskens 2010: 225).

Although tensions existed between Aboriginal people and colonialists on the Cumberland Plain, several Aboriginal families continued to live semi-traditional lives in the area. In 1805, a meeting was held near Prospect Hill, approximately 30 km to the south of the study area, to discuss an end to the conflict in the local area. The meeting was arranged by Reverend Samuel Marsden, on the suggestion of local Aboriginal groups, and was mediated by a group of Aboriginal women and John Kennedy, a free settler. Marsden's efforts appear to have been seen by some local Aboriginal people as duplicitous, and recent research has shed light on the ongoing war for freedom from colonisation waged by local Aboriginal people (Gapps, 2018).

The government policy of removal of Aboriginal children from their parents to assimilate them into white society began fairly early on in the colony's history and was epitomized by the development of the Native Institution at Parramatta in 1814. This facility was moved to the Black Town settlement in 1823, about 13 km northeast of the current study area. It was closed in 1829 and the land subsequently used for farming (Norman 2015).

5.2 Archaeological evidence

Aboriginal people have lived in the Sydney area for more than 36,000 years. The oldest dated site in the greater Sydney region is Cranebrook Terrace which was dated at approximately 41,700 years Before Present (BP) with an error range of 5,000 years (Attenbrow 2010: 18; Karskens 2020). Evidence of Aboriginal occupation has been found dated to 50-60,000 yBP at Lake Mungo in NSW, so it is likely that Aboriginal people have lived in the Sydney region for even longer than indicated by the oldest recorded dates we have at present. The archaeological material record provides evidence of this long occupation, but also provides evidence of a dynamic culture that has changed through time.

The existing archaeological record is limited to certain materials and objects that were able to withstand degradation and decay. As a result, the most common type of Aboriginal objects remaining in the archaeological record are stone artefacts. Archaeological analyses of these artefacts in their contexts have provided the basis for the interpretation of change in material culture over time. Technologies used for making tools changed, along with preference of raw material. Different types of tools appeared at certain times, for example ground stone hatchets are first observed in the archaeological record around 4,000 yBP in the Sydney region (Attenbrow 2010). It is argued that these changes in material culture were an indication of changes in social organisation and behaviour.

After 8,500 yBP silcrete was more dominant as a raw material, and bifacial flaking became the most common technique for tool manufacture. From about 4,000 yBP to 1,000 yBP backed artefacts appear more frequently. Tool manufacture techniques become more varied and bipolar flaking increases (McDonald 2006). It has been argued that from 1,400 to 1,000 years before contact there is evidence of a decline in tool manufacture. This reduction may be the result of decreased tool making, an increase in the use of organic materials, changes in the way tools were made, or changes in what types of tools were preferred (McDonald 2006). The reduction in evidence coincides with the reduction in frequency of backed blades as a percentage of the assemblage.

Further detail on the archaeological record in the surrounds of the study area will be provided in Section 5.4 below.

5.3 Registered Aboriginal sites

The location and details of Aboriginal sites are considered culturally sensitive information. It is recommended that culturally sensitive information be removed prior to this report being made public.

An extensive search of the Aboriginal Heritage Information System (AHIMS) database was conducted on 12 October 2023 (Client ID 827909). The search was run for the following coordinates (GDA 94 Zone 56) with a buffer of 1000 m. A total of 57 sites were identified. The search results are shown Figure 7 and the types of site shown in Table 5.

Easting	293769	297769
Northing	6249985	6253985

A total of 57 sites were identified in the extensive AHIMS search area. Heritage NSW lists 20 standard site features that can be used to describe a site registered with AHIMS, and more than one feature can be used for each site. The frequency of recorded site types is summarised in Table 5 below. For the 26 sites within the search area four site types were identified – 46 artefact sites, seven Potential Archaeological Deposits (PAD), three PADs with artefact and one axe grinding groove.

Table 5. Frequency and percentage of site types in extensive AHIMS search

Site feature	Frequency	Percentage
Artefact site	46	80.7%
PAD	7	12.2%
PAD and Artefact	3	5.2
Axe Grinding Groove	1	1.9%
Total	57	100%

The nature and location of the registered sites reflects the past Aboriginal occupation from which they derive, but is also influenced by historical land-use, and the nature and extent of previous archaeological investigations. Certain site types, such as culturally modified trees, are particularly vulnerable to destruction through historical occupation, while others, such as stone artefacts, are more resilient.

There are no Aboriginal sites recorded within the study area. The closest recorded Aboriginal site is located 450 m to the northeast of the study area. AHIMS ID 45-5-5467 was identified as a potential archaeological deposit by Biosis.

5.4 Previous archaeological investigations

Several archaeological investigations have been conducted in the vicinity of the study area. These are summarised here to provide background in constructing predictive modelling for the likely archaeological potential of the study area.

5.4.1 Mamre Road Precinct DCP Aboriginal Heritage Study (EMM 2020)

EMM Consulting Pty Ltd (EMM) was engaged by the DPIE to prepare an Aboriginal Heritage Study (AHS) for the Mamre Road Precinct (the project), within Western Sydney Employment Area (WSEA). The study area comprised of 999 ha of rural residential land within the Penrith LGA which included Lot 9 DP 253503 (the current study area). This included parts of the suburb of Kemps Creek as well as the north-western portion of Mount Vernon (EMM 2020, 01).

The study area was assessed using a combination of desktop analysis and pedestrian investigation. EMM found that most of the study area comprised of extensive plains on the valley floor. These low-lying areas were found to exhibit the highest levels of disturbance. Examples of large-scale impacts were noted from junkyards, building supply yards, road infrastructure, services easements, housing, and extensive market gardens (EMM 2020, 45). EMM suggests that in these areas the potential for intact archaeological deposits is considered to have been reduced because of the removal or significant disturbance of the upper soil profiles (EMM 2020, 45). However, EMM then goes on to suggest that Aboriginal objects can occur even within heavily disturbed contexts, albeit in low densities (EMM 2020, 45). EMM cautioned that much of the study area was not accessible for investigation, and most of the survey units had extremely low visibility at the time of survey.

The report provides a proposed development control plan (Figure 8) where Lot 9 DP 253503 has been identified as having potential to encounter Aboriginal cultural material (EMM 2020, 53 & 66). This is due to the waterway within the study area receiving an archaeological buffer of 100 m and as a conservative measure, second order river corridors were also highlighted in the AHS with a 100 m buffer (EMM 2020: 53). EMM then recommended an assessment in accordance with guidelines (typically an Aboriginal cultural heritage assessment (ACHA)) for areas where cultural material and/or areas of potential have been identified (EMM 2020: 67).

When discussing the current study area Lot 9 DP 253503 specifically, the report found that the landform had been extensively cleared for pastoral use, with dense exotic grasses and earthworks undertaken for water management and for site levelling. Market gardens had resulted in higher levels of disturbance and erosion (EMM 2020: 47). No Aboriginal sites were identified on this landform (EMM 2020, 47).

5.4.2 Western Sydney Aerotropolis Initial Precincts Draft Aboriginal and Non-Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Assessment (Extent 2020)

Extent Heritage Pty Ltd was commissioned by the Western Sydney Planning Partnership to prepare an Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Assessment for the initial precincts within the Western Sydney Aerotropolis. This was an initial high-level analysis designed to guide the precinct planning and highlight key heritage issues and areas of sensitivity (Extent 2020, i-03). The preliminary heritage assessment consisted primarily of desktop research and targeted site inspections at sites presenting specific risks or elements requiring management considerations (Extent 2020, 03).

The study area was divided into five precincts with the Wianamatta-South Creek Precinct consisting of the valleys and flood plain of the northward-flowing system of creeks from South Creek, Badgerys

Creek and Kemps Creek located near the current study area. Within the five precincts three registered Aboriginal sites were identified with specific constraints on the proposed design works. Extent concluded that the assessment of Aboriginal heritage within the study area is an ongoing process that will require additional consultation, field survey and archaeological investigation.

5.4.3 Archaeological Subsurface Investigations at SEPP59 EC/1 (AHIMS ID 45-5-3201) and EC3/2 (AHIMS ID 45-5-3202), Wonderland Surplus, Old Wallgrove Road, Eastern Creek (JMcD CHM 2006)

JMcD CHM was commissioned to conduct a salvage excavation program within the Wonderland Surplus Area (AHIP 2470). This area is located 8 km to the northeast of the current study area. The landforms sampled in this investigation included hill slopes with a drainage gully and an adjacent ridge top, similar to those landforms within the current study area.

The salvage area encompassed two PADS, EC3-PAD1 (AHIMS ID 45-5-3201) and EC3-PAD2 (AHIMS ID 45-5-3202). The salvage program targeted areas identified in earlier works as having good potential to contain intact archaeological deposits. Open areas were excavated around the location of higher artefact density. The deposits within the sites were found to be relatively shallow with the A1 horizon largely absent across the site and artefacts recovered from the remnant A2 horizon.

The first PAD, EC3-PAD1 sampled a hill slope and drainage gully. The open area within this PAD recovered a low density, sometimes discontinuous scatter. The artefacts were found to have been displaced in a downslope direction, an expected outcome of colluvial processes.

The second area of salvage sampled an adjacent ridge top. Lithic distribution within the area was continuous but low density. The open area excavation revealed that the assemblage had been dispersed in a generally east to north-east direction. This dispersal was interpreted to have likely occurred due to behavioural or environmental events more so than colluvial processes given the ridgetop location of the artefacts.

A total of 1,550 artefacts were recovered from the PAD sites, equating to densities of 0.8 and 0.9 artefacts per square metre. The predominant raw material was silcrete with some silicified tuff, quartz and petrified wood. Reduction types recorded included flakes, broken flakes, cores, retouched tools and backed flakes. Reduction techniques included bifacial, unifacial and asymmetrical flaking.

JMcD CHM (2004) interpreted the low density of artefacts within the excavated areas to indicate that the sites were likely to have been used in an intermittent manner. The accumulation of lithics at the site is likely to have occurred slowly over long time periods rather than intense discard associated with tool production areas or domestic areas.

5.4.4 Oakdale Concept Plan, Aboriginal Heritage Assessment, and Impact Assessment (Godden Mackay Logan 2007)

An Aboriginal Heritage Assessment was prepared by Godden Mackay Logan (GML) in 2007 for the Oakdale Concept Plan. The Aboriginal Heritage Assessment included a number of precincts that are part of the Oakdale Concept Plan, including Oakdale Central, Oakdale South and Oakdale West. (846 m north east of the current study area).

The background research conducted as part of the Aboriginal Heritage Assessment identified five previously recorded Aboriginal sites. The sites included two isolated artefacts and three artefact scatters. All the sites were located approximately 3 km northeast of the current study area, within the Oakdale Central precinct.

A predictive model was developed as part of the Aboriginal Heritage Assessment. The predictive model indicated that the most likely Aboriginal site types to occur within the Oakdale Concept Plan area would be open campsites, midden deposits, isolated finds, and scarred trees. The likely distribution of these site was based on proximity to water sources. It was interpreted that open campsites and midden deposits would be associated with dry landforms along or adjacent any watercourses. Isolated artefacts could be identified anywhere across the landscape, representing deliberate discard or movement via natural processes. Scarred trees would be identified within areas consisting of remnant, mature vegetation.

A subsequent archaeological survey was conducted across the Oakdale Concept Plan area. Due to the dense grass and other vegetation across the site, the survey targeted areas of ground surface exposure and locations retaining archaeological potential. A total of eleven Aboriginal sites were recorded during the survey. The sites included five isolated artefacts and six low density artefact scatters. The identified artefacts predominately consisted of red silcrete waste flakes. Most Aboriginal sites were identified within vehicle tracks and excavated/scoured areas within proximity to Ropes Creek and its tributaries. Almost all the sites were located within the northern portion of the Oakdale Concept Plan area.

Six sites were identified within the Oakdale West precinct generally concentrated along Ropes Creek on the Eastern Boundary of the current study area. The sites consist of three isolated finds (IF3, IF4 and IF5) and three artefact scatters (OC1 [AHIMS ID 45-5-3382], OC3 [AHIMS ID 45-5-3384] and OC4).

The Aboriginal Heritage Assessment concluded that there was potential for further intact cultural material to be located within surface and subsurface contexts along land bordering Ropes Creek and associated tributaries. It was suggested that the Oakdale Lands were unlikely to have been subject to intensive occupation resulting in substantial deposits. This evidence suggests that Aboriginal people were more likely to have camped along more prominent watercourses such as Eastern and South Creeks. Therefore, any Aboriginal objects located within the area are likely to be representative of background scatter.

The surrounding undulating pastoral land was believed to have low archaeological potential due to past land clearance. An Aboriginal archaeological potential map was developed, based on proximity to Ropes Creek and tributaries (GML 2007: 55). It was therefore recommended that the area of archaeological potential be subject to intensive surface survey and test excavation (where survey identifies areas of subsurface archaeological potential).

5.4.5 Oakdale Central Aboriginal Archaeological Technical Report (GML 2013)

Goddon Mackay Logan (2013) conducted test excavations along Ropes Creek within the Oakdale Central precinct approximately 2 km northeast of the current study area in 2013. The testing program was recommended following a field survey by GML in 2007 that identified an area of moderate archaeological potential along Eastern Creek. The program consisted of 109 test pits within the area of moderate potential adjacent to the creek as well as the area of low potential along the hill slopes. Three landforms composed of three different soil landscapes were tested. A total of 285 lithic artefacts were recovered from 54 of the excavated test pits. The assemblage included two backed artefacts, three artefacts with possible use-wear, two retouched tools, two retouched artefacts and two cores. Raw materials present within the assemblage included silcrete (88 per cent), indurated mudstone, quartz, and quartzite.

The distribution of artefacts along Ropes Creek and the across the hill slopes was compared. It was found that artefact densities were generally continuous along those transects closest to the creek. Artefact distribution was found to be sparser further away from the creek within the slope landforms.

The excavations identified a total of four new Aboriginal sites and determined the boundary of AHIMS ID 45-5-3383. Three of the sites are located adjacent to Ropes Creek, one is located on a lower hill slope and one site is located on the upper hillslope.

5.4.6 Oakdale South Industrial Estate Archaeological Salvage Report (Artefact Heritage 2018a)

In November and December 2016, Artefact Heritage (2018a) conducted a salvage excavation at Oakdale South AS 3 (AHIMS ID 45-5-4528) and Oakdale South AS 4 (AHIMS ID 45-5-4529). These sites were located 3.3 km northeast of the current study area. A total of 86 square metres were excavated during the Oakdale South salvage program, with a total of 1,301 artefacts retrieved.

The results of the salvage were generally consistent with outcomes of the previous test excavations which took place at Oakdale South. The major different in result was the reduction of the percentage of debitage recovered, 31.38 % during test excavation down to 10.89 % during the salvage.

Detailed analysis conducted during the reporting phase compared the results of the salvage program with the results of other subsurface investigations in the vicinity. This analysis found a strong correlation between artefact densities and landform elevation above sea level. The highest artefact densities tend to be located on landforms approximately 60 m above (5-17 Artefacts per square metre), with density decreasing at higher elevations. At 90 m above sea level, density drops to 0.8-0.9 artefacts per square metre.

5.4.7 Southern Link Road Wallgrove Road to Mamre Road, Horsley Park to Kemps Creek, NSW Aboriginal Archaeological Survey Report, Stage 2 PACHCI (Kelleher Nightingale Consulting 2019)

Kelleher Nightingale was engaged by TfNSW to prepare an Aboriginal archaeological survey report for a 7.5 km investigation area including Bakers and Aldington Road immediately to the north of the current study area. The survey resulted in the identification of one new archaeological site (AHIMS ID 45-5-5274), an artefact scatter located on the northwestern margin of the current study area. This site was recorded as a low density silcrete scatter identified across a large sheet erosion exposure around the eastern margin of a dam. The assessment also noted 6 areas of PAD, including one beginning approximately 21.85 km north of the current study area and extending west and north. This PAD comprised an area of gentle gradient lower hillslope on the western side of a dammed first order tributary of South Creek. No surface artefacts were noted, and the PAD was assessed as displaying moderate archaeological potential.

The survey report found that areas disturbed by existing development or affected by flooding from larger creek-lines had little potential for intact subsurface archaeological deposit. Areas of steeper gradient on the slopes and crests of the ridgelines and spurs were found to have been affected by soil movement and erosion, exacerbated by vegetation clearance and modern land use disturbance. The assessment notes that minor creek-lines are likely to yield less archaeological evidence than major water courses due to the pattern of past Aboriginal land-use.

5.4.8 Summary

Previous archaeological investigations have identified that areas near permanent waterways and tributaries are areas of relatively higher archaeological sensitivity. However, even in such location's artefact densities were not markedly high (Biosis 2010; Navin Officer 2007). Artefact densities have been observed to drop with distance from permanent waterways. From these transitional areas, artefact densities were described as further diminishing with distance to what has been described that as background scatter levels.

There is also a noted increase in artefact densities on elevated slopes and crests that overlook permanent waterways. GML (2013 and 2015) also identified clay oven features on flat areas and rises. Artefact Heritage (2018a) noted that artefacts densities tend to drop on elevations higher than 90 m above sea level.

5.5 Predictive model

Based on the results of the AHIMS extensive search, historical research on the post contact land use of the study area, and an understanding of previous archaeological investigations near the study area, the following predictive statements for identifying Aboriginal sites have been developed:

- Localised agricultural bulk earthworks including dam formation, flood mitigation works will have significantly impacted the Aboriginal archaeological record within the footprint of such works.
- Historical, pastoral, and agricultural activities would have involved clearance of the native vegetation once present, introduction of exotic species, grazing, and ploughing. These activities would have resulted in vertical and horizontal movement and dispersion of artefacts.
- The results of AHIMS extensive search indicate that Aboriginal sites are likely to be present on ridgeline and slope landforms but are likely to be low-density.
- Evidence of Aboriginal occupation is likely to be focussed on watercourses, particularly high order watercourses. The study area includes an ephemeral second order tributary of Kemps Creek.

6.0 SITE SURVEY METHODOLOGY

6.1 Aboriginal site definition

An Aboriginal site is generally defined as an Aboriginal object or place. An Aboriginal object refers to any deposit, object, or material evidence (not being a handicraft) relating to Aboriginal habitation of the area that comprises New South Wales (DECCW 2010). Aboriginal objects may include stone tools, scarred trees or rock art. Some sites, or Aboriginal places can also be intangible and although they might not be visible, these places have cultural significance to Aboriginal people.

The Code of Practice states in regard to the definition of a site and its boundary that one or more of the following criteria must be used when recording material traces of Aboriginal land use:

- The spatial extent of any visible Aboriginal objects, or direct evidence of their location
- Obvious physical boundaries where present, for example mound site and middens (if visibility is good), a ceremonial ground
- Identification by the Aboriginal community on the basis of cultural information. For the purposes of this study an Aboriginal site, or potential Aboriginal site, was defined by recording the spatial extent of visible traces or the direct evidence of their location within the study area.

6.2 Archaeological survey methodology

6.2.1 Site inspection

Archaeological survey of the study area was conducted on foot, in accordance with the Code of Practice, on 19 May 2021. The survey was undertaken by Julia McLachlan and John Sokalik (Artefact Heritage), and Steve Randall (Deerubbin LALC).

A photographic record was kept during the survey. Photographs were taken to record aspects of survey units including disturbance and recorded Aboriginal sites. Scales were used for photographs where appropriate. A survey path was recorded using a handheld GPS unit.

Three survey units were defined based on landform and property access.

6.2.2 Aims of archaeological survey

The aims of the archaeological survey were to:

- Cover a representative sample of the study area that would potentially be impacted by the project works
- Record any surface or potential subsurface Aboriginal sites identified during the survey
- Identify areas of PAD that may be present in areas that have had no or minimal disturbance
- Engage with Deerubbin LALC regarding the proposed works and the archaeological potential of the study area
- Collect information to ascertain whether further archaeological investigation is required

6.3 Archaeological survey coverage

A summary of the survey coverage of all survey units, according to the methodology outlined in the Code of Practice, is provided in Table 6 and Table 7. The location of these survey units is shown in Figure 9.

Ground surface visibility was effectively 1-5%, however the Code of Practice stipulates rounding of percentages to the nearest 10% and this has been applied to figures below.

Table 6. Effective survey coverage

6.4 Archaeological survey units

6.4.1 Survey unit 1

Survey unit 1 consists of the eastern portion of the study area bordering on Aldington Road it contains a lower modified slope landform and is 31,000 m². Less than 1% of the survey unit consists of natural vegetation located in the northeast corner surrounding a creek (see Figure 10). The creek flows westwards into a small dam approximately 4,000 m² (see Figure 11) which continues westwards through an underground water pipe system that feeds the dam and creek in survey unit 2 (see Figure 12). The walls of the dams are leveed, and substantial earth movement has occurred to maximise the dam's capacity. The sloping banks rise 1 m above the surrounding landscape (see Figure 13).

The survey unit comprises of market garden fields to the east (see Figure 14) covering approximately 5,300 m², a gravel road runs from Aldington Road between the market gardens and then circles around the dam. The remainder of the survey unit comprises of grassed low slopes. The landscape of the entire survey unit appears to be heavily modified low slope due to the above-mentioned features.

To the southeast and outside of the survey unit is the location of the domestic residence which includes a single storey property, large shed and gravel driveway that covers an area of 5000 m² (see Figure 15). This area was excluded due to clear signs of significant land modification and disturbance such as levelling of the landscape and construction of large permanent structures. Survey unit 1 was carefully inspected for surface artefacts, but none were identified.

6.4.2 Survey unit 2

Survey unit 2 is 40,000 m² and contains two dams which combined total 5,700 m² (see Figure 16). The smaller dam to the east is fed by underground water pipes in survey unit 1 that then feeds a modified creek into the larger dam on the western side of the survey unit (see Figure 17). During the site visit most of the survey unit appeared to be quite flat and covered in mostly natural vegetation, the majority being a tall grass and reeds that surrounded the dams and creek with little to no trees (see Figure 18).

During the site inspection of the survey unit ground which had previously appeared to be flat was undulating underfoot beneath the tall grass. The ground was confirmed to have been heavily modified with earth-infilling and levelling works, which was later confirmed in areal imagery to have previously been market gardens (see Figure 6). The former market gardens and infilled ground were located over the former meandering course of the original creek, now diverted to the north. This area of disturbance covers an area of approximately 10,000 m². To the west a large area comprising of 7,000 m² is still used today as market gardens (see Figure 19), as a result, in total 17,000 m² of the survey unit has been impacted as a market garden at some point.

The land surrounding the dam on the eastern side of the survey unit has large amounts of debris and heavy mechanical machinery deposited. The walls of the dams are leveed, and substantial earth movement has occurred to maximise the dam's capacity. The sloping banks rise 1-1.5 m above the surrounding landscape in survey unit 2 and are artificially constructed (see Figure 20).

Ground visibility was very low due to grass cover, with a single patch of exposure occurring to the east of and leading back to the larger dam on the west side (see Figure 21) this was inspected for Aboriginal objects; none were identified. It is likely that runoff and erosion from the eastern bank of the dam has occurred as the exposed surface comprised of an orange-brown sand-clay mix that had fragments of broken glass.

No Aboriginal objects or areas of PAD were identified within survey unit 2.

6.4.3 Survey unit 3

Survey unit 3 is 25,000 m² and contains a low-mid slope landform that slopes southwards into survey unit 2 (see Figure 22). Most of this survey unit comprises of market gardens 23,000 m² which equates to 92% of the survey unit (see Figure 23). There were several market gardens that contained irrigation channels running through them which would imply additional disturbance (see Figure 24). Surface exposure was only encountered via the exposed track marks from vehicle movement through the area which comprised of a yellow-brown cemented fine silt (see Figure 25). Visibility across survey unit 3 overall was approximately less than 5%.

No Aboriginal objects or areas of PAD were identified within survey unit 3.

7.0 ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION

7.1 Local context

The archaeological evidence of the Aboriginal occupation of the area predominantly consists of lithic artefacts, including isolated artefacts, artefact scatters, and subsurface deposits, with higher densities focusing on permanent water sources.

Archaeological evidence from the area indicates that major water courses such as Kemps Creek were likely a focus for Aboriginal occupation due to the available resources in the area. Adjacent elevated areas of ground are likely to have been utilised for camp sites. While archaeological evidence for aboriginal material culture is available across the landscape in this region, sites located away from these major water courses are more likely to represent transitory occupation events as people moved through the landscape between the resource zones, for example the local Kemps Creek and Ropes Creek.

The study area includes an ephemeral second order tributary of Kemps Creek. However, localised agricultural bulk earthworks including dam formation, flood mitigation works, historical pastoral, and agricultural activities would have involved clearance of the native vegetation and introduction of exotic species, grazing, and ploughing. These activities would have significantly impacted the Aboriginal archaeological record within the footprint of such works resulting in vertical and horizontal movement and dispersion of artefacts. This is discussed further in Sections 7.2.2 and 7.2.3.

7.2 Discussion of study area

The study area, if undisturbed, represents a transitional area between two major water courses: Kemps Creek and Ropes Creek. There is one dammed second order tributary that runs throughout the study area. The local archaeological model suggests that the expected archaeological evidence would represent 'background scatter'; one-off occupations or transitory land-use as people moved between the higher intensity resource zones (McDonald 2007).

7.2.1 Slopes within the study area

The construction of the three extant dams have resulted in significant ground disturbance to the lower slopes surrounding the prior creek-line, now ephemeral drainage line. The landscape in survey unit 1 represents a heavily modified low slope due to the installation of a dam and market gardens, which most likely involved cutting away the original slope and levelling the landscape. This renders it unlikely to have intact subsurface archaeological deposits.

The low-mid slopes in survey unit 3 are slightly more pronounced than survey unit 1 resulting in greater soil movement away from sensitive crest areas (which are not present in the study area). This process would be exacerbated by extensive vegetation clearance and modern land use as cattle grazing pasture.

These slopes have been dominated by market gardens since 1991. Several of these market gardens had clear signs of irrigation channels running north-south (see Figure 24). The installation of these channels and market gardens suggests ground disturbance of up to 500 mm. Aboriginal artefacts in this context are likely to be disturbed, low-density or isolated artefacts, and not representative of the Aboriginal occupation of the area.

Overall, the areas within the study area of steeper gradient on the slopes were found to have been affected by soil movement, ground disturbance through the construction of dams and market gardens which further remove the likelihood of substantial intact Aboriginal deposits.

7.2.2 Modified creeks and creek banks

Modelling by Jo McDonald and Peter Mitchell (1994) on the Cumberland Plain has suggested that creek order can be used to predict areas of archaeological potential. The theory is that in any climate and landscape, a threshold catchment area is necessary to allow permanent creek flow or the establishment of waterholes with extended longevity (Comber 2015).

These conditions appear to be met at the junction of two second or third order creeks which tend to contain more complex sites with a high density of artefacts (Comber 2015). Second and third order creeks are also likely to contain larger sites within 100 metres of the watercourse while first order creeks are small tributaries that flow into and feed larger creeks but normally do not have water flowing into it.

A second order tributary of the Kemps Creek flows through the study area. Aerial imagery from 1947 demonstrates that this tributary continued through the study area westwards with a point of confluence occurring approximately 550 m to the southwest feeding into the Kemps Creek (see Figure 3). By 1965 the aerial imagery demonstrates that the pre-existing creek had been heavily modified with portions being significantly widened particularly in the northeast of the study area and the creation of four dams (see Figure 4). The walls of the dams are leveed, and substantial earth movement has occurred to maximise the dam's capacity.

Aerial imagery from 1947 onwards clearly demonstrates persistent ground disturbance through a series of modifications to this second order creek. These modifications have not only significantly altered the original width and extent of the creek but have most likely removed terracing that may have existed on the banks of the creek.

7.2.3 Response to Mamre Road Precinct DCP Aboriginal Heritage Study (EMM 2020)

As discussed in 5.4.1 previous investigations conducted by EMM in 2020 identified that the current study area as having potential to encounter Aboriginal cultural material (see Figure 8) (EMM 2020, 53 & 66). This is due to a second order tributary running throughout the study area receiving an archaeological buffer of 100 m. Additionally, as a conservative measure, all second order river corridors were also highlighted in the AHS with a 100 m buffer (EMM 2020, 53).

The use of creek order models suggests that the presence of a second order tributary waterbody within the study area is a significant feature within the landscape. Second order creeks often suggest higher potential for human activity. Due to its size and extent the creek within the study area appears to have been a minor second order tributary which in the middle reaches of such a waterbody there is potential for archaeological evidence of sparse but focused activity such as one-off camp locations and single episode knapping events (McDonald 2007).

However, predictions for how archaeological potential will be subject to the effect of landscape parameters is heavily dependent on whether there has been limited prior disturbance. Aerial imagery from 1947 onwards has clearly demonstrated severe land modification and disturbance to the creek. This disturbance has included alteration of the original flow regime through river regulation by damming, draining, extraction and diversion of water. Damming for irrigation and domestic use has resulted in earthworks using levee banks, widening, and cutting of the creek to accommodate the installation and backfilling of four dams over a forty-year period.

Prior to ground disturbance, it is entirely possible there may have been terracing on the banks of the creek, or the steep slopes overlooking the creek may have been used as potential camp sites. However, the study area is located within a zone that has historically been characterised as rural in nature. The dominant activities within the vicinity from the nineteenth century onwards have been a mix of agricultural pursuits, including pastoralism and utilisation of market gardens.

The study area has and still is dominated on either side of the creek by market gardens, occurring since the late 1980s. Ploughing works, associated with pastoralism, would typically impact the soil profile to a depth of approximately 300 mm. Given the shallow topsoil known to be present within the Blacktown soil landscape, this disturbance is likely to have some impact on any archaeological remains present within the study area.

Prior to agricultural activities the study area demonstrated potential to encounter subsurface remains, however ongoing pastoral activities across the study area has resulted in a heavily disturbed landscape, significantly reducing the potential to encounter intact Aboriginal cultural material. This assessment is supported by EMM when discussing the current study area since, the report found that the landform had been extensively cleared for pastoral use, with dense exotic grasses and earthworks undertaken for water management and for site levelling. Market gardens had resulted in higher levels of disturbance and erosion (EMM 2020, 47). No Aboriginal sites were identified on this landform (EMM 2020, 47).

7.2.4 Significance assessment

7.3 Significance assessment methodology

An assessment of the cultural heritage significance of an item or place is required in order to form the basis of its management. The Guide to investigating, assessing and reporting on Aboriginal cultural heritage in NSW (OEH 2011a) provides guidelines for heritage assessment with reference to the Burra Charter (Australia ICOMOS 2013). The assessment is made in relation to four values or criteria which are shown in Table 8. In relation to each of the criteria, the significance of the subject area should be ranked as high, moderate, or low.

Cultural heritage consists of places or objects, that are of significance to Aboriginal people. Cultural heritage values are the attributes of these places or objects that allow the assessment of levels of cultural significance.

Assessing the cultural significance of a place or object means defining why a place or object is culturally important. It is only when these reasons are defined that measures can be taken to appropriately manage possible impacts on this significance. Assessing cultural significance involves two main steps, identifying the range of values present across the study area and assessing why they are important.

Social/cultural heritage significance should be addressed by the Aboriginal people who have a connection to, or interest in, the site. As part of the consultation process the Aboriginal stakeholders were asked to provide information on the cultural significance of the study area. Information on consultation with Aboriginal stakeholders for the project is provided in Section 3.0.

Table 8. Burra Charter Heritage significance criteria

Criterion	Description
Social	The spiritual, traditional, historical, or contemporary associations and attachments the place or area has for Aboriginal people. Social or cultural value is how people express their connection with a place and the meaning that place has for them. Does the subject area have strong or special association with the Aboriginal community for social, cultural or spiritual reasons?
Historic	Historic value refers to the associations of a place with a historically important person, event, phase or activity in an Aboriginal community. Is the subject area important to the cultural or natural history of the local area and/or region and/or state?
Scientific	This refers to the importance of a landscape, area, place or object because of its rarity, representativeness and the extent to which it may contribute to further understanding and information. Information about scientific values will be gathered through any archaeological investigation carried out. Does the subject area have potential to yield information that will contribute to an understanding of the cultural or natural history of the local area and/or region and/or state?
Aesthetic	This refers to the sensory, scenic, architectural and creative aspects of the place. It is often linked with the social values. It may consider form, scale, colour, texture and material of the fabric or landscape, and the smell and sounds associated with the place and its use. Is the subject area important in demonstrating aesthetic characteristics in the local area and/or region and/or state?

In addition to the four criteria, Heritage NSW (OEH 2011a; 10) requires consideration of the following:

- Research potential: does the evidence suggest any potential to contribute to an understanding of the area and/or region and/or state's natural and cultural history?
- Representativeness: how much variability (outside and/or inside the subject area) exists, what is already conserved, how much connectivity is there?
- Rarity: is the subject area important in demonstrating a distinctive way of life, custom, process, land use, function or design no longer practised? Is it in danger of being lost or of exceptional interest?
- Education potential: does the subject area contain teaching sites or sites that might have teaching potential?

7.4 Social and cultural significance

Social and cultural heritage values should be addressed by Aboriginal people who have a connection to, or interest in, the area. As Aboriginal community consultation is still ongoing, this section would be updated as the consultation process progresses.

7.5 Historic significance

Historic values refer to the association of place with aspect of Aboriginal history. Historic values are not necessarily reflected in physical objects, but may be intangible and relate to memories, stories, or experiences. The study area is not known to be associated with any people, events, or activities of historical importance to the Aboriginal community. The recorded Aboriginal site within the study area was unable to be located, and likely represented temporary site occupation. No new Aboriginal sites were identified within the study area.

No known events of historic or cultural significance are understood to have occurred in the study area. Therefore, at this level of assessment, the study area is not considered to be of historic significance.

7.6 Scientific significance

Scientific values refer to a site's potential to contribute to our current understanding and information.

A second order tributary waterbody to the Kemps Creek in the study area is a significant feature within the landscape that often suggests higher potential for human activity. However, aerial imagery from 1947 has demonstrated severe land modification and disturbance to the creek through widening and creation of up to four dams within a 40-year period.

The study area is located within a zone that has historically been characterised as rural in nature. The dominant activities within the vicinity from the nineteenth century onwards have been a mix of agricultural pursuits, including pastoralism and utilisation of market gardens.

Ploughing works associated with pastoral and agricultural use of the property, may impact the soil profile to a depth of approximately 300 mm. Given the shallow topsoil known to be present within the Blacktown soil landscape, this disturbance is likely to have some impact on any archaeological remains present within the study area. Even if archaeological material were to be identified, it would likely be limited and only be representative of background scatter due to the nature of archaeological deposits within low-mid slope landscapes. This is supported by the previous predictive modelling undertaken for the northern Cumberland Plain.

7.7 Aesthetic significance

Aesthetic values refer to the sensory, scenic, landscape and creative aspects of the place. These values may be related to the landscape and are often closely associated with social/cultural values. As the study area is located within a developed agricultural setting, much of the aesthetic significance is lost.

The study area is of low aesthetic significance based on proximity to a heavily modified landform, through the creation of dams, cutting away of natural slopes, the removal of almost all-natural vegetation and its replacement with market gardens.

7.8 Statement of significance

No specific historic or socio/cultural values were identified for the study area. The study area is of low aesthetic significance due to persistent pastoral and agricultural activities with market gardens dominating the study area since the late 1980s. The study area is also considered to have low potential for scientific significance due to continuous land modification and high potential for disturbance of surface artefacts within sensitive landform features.

This statement of significance will be reviewed following receipt of RAP comments as part of the consultation process.

8.0 AVOIDING AND MINIMISING HARM

8.1 Proposed works

Icon Oceania Kemps Development are proposing the development of Lot 9, DP 253503, being 253-267 Aldington Road, Kemps Creek for the use of three warehouse and distribution centre buildings, including ancillary office spaces, hardstand areas and car parking, with a total gross floor area of 101,453 m². Site-wide preparation works, including demolition, bulk earthworks, road construction, site servicing, on-site detention, landscaping, and subdivision

The SSD proposal includes:

- Clearing of all the existing built form (existing residential property), dams decommissioned and filled.
- Earthworks to be undertaken across the site to provide for flat benched platforms.
- Road and associated infrastructure are proposed to be constructed to service the developed platforms.
- External services infrastructure will be required to service the site and include lead-in electrical from either the ESR development just to the south or the FKC development in the north, along Aldington Road. This would involve the construction of a short lead-in and sewer via a trunk main to be built along the southern boundary of the Site.
- The project will involve the design and delivery of industrial warehouses (number and form to be developed in the design phase) with all necessary earthworks, services infrastructure, roadworks, and construction and fit out of proposed industrial warehouses.

8.2 Impact assessment methodology

The definition of harm to an object or place under s5 the NPW Act includes any act or omission that 'destroys, defaces or damages the object or place or in relation to an object –moves the object from land on which it had been situated.'

Direct harm may occur because of activities which disturb the ground surface including site preparation activities, earthworks and ground excavation, and the installation of services and infrastructure.

Indirect harm for Aboriginal heritage refers to impacts that may affect sites or features located immediately beyond or within the area of the proposed works. Indirect harm may include impacts from vibration, increased visitation, or increased erosion, including ancillary project activities (construction and/or operation) that are not located within the study area.

8.3 Aboriginal heritage impact assessment

Bulk earthworks within the study area would result in total removal or modification of the ground. This would significantly impact any intact archaeological deposits however, as discussed earlier the study area has been repeatedly modified, impacted, and disturbed through pastoral activities over the years.

As a result, there were no Aboriginal place objects identified within the study area. This report has assessed those intact archaeological deposits are not likely to be present below the ground surface. Therefore, the project is unlikely to impact any Aboriginal heritage items or places, or potential Aboriginal archaeology.

8.4 Ecologically Sustainable Development principles

In accordance with the ACHAR guidelines, the principles of ecologically sustainable development have been considered in preparation of this Aboriginal heritage assessment, including options to avoid impacts to Aboriginal cultural heritage, assessment of unavoidable impacts, identification of mitigation and management measures, and taking account of Aboriginal community views. The principles of ecologically sustainable development are detailed in the NSW Protection of the Environment Administration Act 1991. Principles of ecologically sustainable development relevant to the assessment of the project as it relates to Aboriginal cultural heritage are considered below.

8.4.1 The integration principle

Decision making processes should effectively integrate both long term and short term economic, environmental, social, and equitable considerations (the 'integration principle'). The preparation of this ACHAR demonstrates regard for the integration principle by considering Aboriginal heritage values and impacts to these from the project during the planning phase of the project. The nature of the proposed project is one that contributes to the long term economic and social needs of current and future residents of the area.

8.4.2 The precautionary principle

If there are threats of serious or irreversible environmental damage, lack of full scientific confidence should not be used as a reason for postponing measures to prevent environmental degradation (the 'precautionary principle'). No Aboriginal sites were identified in this ACHAR. Since there is no identified potential for archaeological deposits, no test excavation program is required.

8.4.3 The principle of intergenerational equity

The principle of intergenerational equity involves collating scientific and cultural information on former Aboriginal occupation of the study area through previous investigations and this ACHAR. This report has assessed that it is considered unlikely that Aboriginal objects are present within the study area.

8.5 Cumulative Impacts

A cumulative impact is an impact on Aboriginal cultural heritage resulting from the incremental impact of the action/s of a development when added to other past, present and reasonably foreseeable future actions. Due to urbanization and industrialisation, there has been a significant amount of development in Kemps Creek area and the greater Sydney.

Kemps Creek and the surrounding region is subject to several large development projects which would result in a substantial cumulative impact to the Aboriginal cultural heritage of the region. The Western Sydney International Airport site at Badgerys Creek, which is located approximately 5 km from the study area, extends over approximately 1700 hectares, with adjacent lands progressively scheduled for resumption and development over the next 50 years. At least 70 Aboriginal sites have been identified across the airport site with additional heritage investigation identifying additional Aboriginal objects as part of project mitigation measures (Navin Officer 2016a). While effort has been made to preserve sites through environmental conservation areas and movement of topsoil it is expected that a large portion of these sites will be impacted or relocated as part of construction.

Options assessment of the proposed M12 route resulted in the identification of a number of surface and subsurface sites through a combination of survey and test excavation. A total of 19 Aboriginal sites are located within the construction footprint and will be subject to impact as part of the program including several sites to the north of the current study area (Navin Officer 2016b).

The development of the Oakdale South Estate in Horsley Park identified seven Aboriginal sites, with six of these located within the impact footprint of the development. Salvage excavations carried out in November and December 2016 within two of the identified sites, Oakdale South AS 3 (AHIMS ID 45-5-4528) and Oakdale South AS 4 (AHIMS ID 45-5-4529), retrieved 1,301 artefacts across 86 m² (Artefact Heritage 2016).

However, due to the historical widespread ground disturbance of the site for pastoral and agricultural use, including diverting natural water courses no Aboriginal sites were identified within the study area, therefore, the cumulative impacts of the proposed work would be negligible.

9.0 MANAGEMENT AND MITIGATION MEASURES

9.1 Unexpected finds

An unexpected finds policy would be implemented in the event of any unexpected finds of Aboriginal sites, objects, or archaeological deposits being identified during construction.

An unexpected archaeological finds policy would involve the following actions:

- Stop work within the affected area, protect the potential archaeological find, and inform environment staff or supervisor
- Contact a suitably qualified archaeologist to assess the potential archaeological find
- If Aboriginal archaeological material is identified, works in the area should cease, and NSW Heritage should be informed. Further archaeological mitigation may be required prior to works recommencing
- If human remains are found:
 - Immediately cease all work at the location
 - Notify site manager and project archaeologist
 - Notify NSW Police
 - Notify Heritage NSW on the Environment Line 131555 as soon as practicable and provide details of the remains and their locations
 - Do not recommence any work at the location until cleared

10.0 CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

10.1 Conclusions

The following results and recommendations are based on consideration of:

- The requirements of Aboriginal heritage guidelines:
 - The ACHAR guide (OEH 2011a)
 - The Code of Practice (DECCW 2010a)
 - Consultation Requirements (DECCW 2010b)
- Aboriginal heritage requirements outlined in the issued SEARS for SSD-23480429
- The results of background research and archaeological survey results
- The likely impacts of the proposed development

This assessment has found that no Aboriginal sites were identified in the study area due to the historical widespread ground disturbance of the site for pastoral and agricultural use, including diverting natural water courses for establishing market gardens. There are no Aboriginal archaeological constraints for the development.

10.2 Recommendations

Based on the results of this assessment and in accordance with Aboriginal heritage guidelines mandated in the SEARS for the project, the following recommendations are made:

- Should Aboriginal objects be identified during ground disturbing works, the following protocol should be enacted:
 - All work must immediately cease in, and around, the location of the unexpected find
 - The contractor supervisor must notify the environmental manager for the project, and a qualified archaeologist must be contacted to assess the provenance and significance of the find
 - Should the find be an Aboriginal object, further consultation with RAPs, assessment and approval may be required before works can continue in that area.
- Any changes to the project construction footprint outside of the current study area may require further Aboriginal assessment

Dear Sir or Madam,

Re: Warehouse and Distribution Centre Development Aldington Road, Kemps Creek, Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Assessment-Section 4.1.2 Identification of potential interested parties

Icon Oceania Kemps Development (the proponent) proposes to develop the entirety of 253-267 Aldington Road, Kemps Creek NSW 2178 (Lot 9, DP 253503) into a warehouse and distribution centre. An application will be made to Minister of Planning for the project to be considered State Significant Development (SSD) and thus the project will be assessed under the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979.

An Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) is being prepared by Root Partnerships for the project. Root Partnerships has engaged Artefact Heritage (Artefact) to prepare an Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Assessment Report (ACHAR) for the EIS.

Root Partnerships wishes to consult with any Aboriginal persons or organisations that hold cultural knowledge relevant to determining the significance of Aboriginal objects and places in the Kemps Creek area. The purpose of the community consultation is to assist the proponent in the preparation of an ACHAR.

Heritage NSW

Thank you for your email to Heritage NSW, Department of Premier and Cabinet. We will respond to your email as soon as possible.

A new Heritage Management System is coming!

We are working to improve our systems to make it easier for you to work with us. We will be releasing a new Heritage Management System in early 2021, which will provide:

- improved heritage search tools, and
- the ability to submit, pay and track the progress of applications online.

Further updates will be provided as work progresses.

Reinvigorated s170 program commences 1 February 2021

Heritage NSW is working with state agencies to help them meet their obligations for managing heritage assets under section 170 of the Heritage Act 1977. Please get in touch if you do not know your Heritage NSW single point of contact. For further information about an agency's heritage responsibilities, please refer to the State Agency Heritage Guide available on our website. Section 170 notifications, registers and heritage asset management strategies should be submitted in accordance with this guide.

New Standard Exemptions and s60 fast track approval pathway

New Standard Exemptions and a fast track approval pathway for items listed on the State Heritage Register (SHR) or subject to an Interim Heritage Order (IHO) came into force on 1 December 2020. The new Standard Exemptions, fast track application form and supporting information are available on the Heritage NSW website.

Coronavirus (COVID 19)

Given the rapid spread of coronavirus (COVID-19) Heritage NSW has taken steps to protect the safety, health and wellbeing of our staff, partners and communities. We have implemented a number of safeguards that meet official Australian Government COVID-19 guidelines. Whilst our offices remain open, we have well established flexible working arrangements for our teams across NSW, and we will continue to adapt as necessary as these guidelines continue to evolve. Face-to-face meetings and field work/site visits with our customers are now subject to new rules on gatherings and social distancing measures. There may also be some short delays in processing postage in the coming weeks.

We are committed to supporting our communities during this developing situation and we thank you for your patience and understanding.

Aboriginal cultural heritage regulation is now part of Heritage NSW

From 1 July 2020 Heritage NSW began managing Aboriginal cultural heritage regulatory functions under the National Parks and Wildlife Act 1974. Now the government functions for the management of Aboriginal cultural heritage is within the one State government agency. All the staff that previously carried out these functions in the Department of Planning, Industry and Environment have been welcomed into Heritage NSW.

Applications and section 170 notifications

If you have submitted an application under the Heritage Act 1977 or the National Parks and Wildlife Act 1974, or a section 170 notification, it will first be reviewed for completeness and then allocated to the appropriate assessment team or officer. An officer will contact you if any additional information is required. The completeness check is generally completed within 7-14 business days.

Attention: John Sokalik, Project Archaeologist

A representative of the Deerubbin Local Aboriginal Land Council inspected the properties of 253-267 Aldington Road, Kemps Creek on Wednesday, 19th May 2021. An Aboriginal cultural heritage assessment was undertaken to evaluate the likely impact that future development has on the cultural heritage of the land.

Due to the heavy impact from housing, sheds barns, market gardening & dams No Aboriginal cultural materials (in the form of stone artefacts, for example) were found during the Aboriginal cultural heritage assessment,

Dear John,

Thank you for your methodology for Aldington Road, Kemps Creek. Here at K.Y.W.G we hold over 50 years of cultural knowledge, our aspiration is to conserve our cultural heritage and our aim is to pass on cultural knowledge. Aboriginal people have walked this land for tens of thousands of years and continue to do so. We follow the water ways as they provide resource, we hold a deep connection with mother earth and we are guided by the skies. Aboriginal people would camp, hunt, gather, practice lore and followed customs all across mother earth, we protect our sacred sites such as men's and woman's sites.

The study area is highly sensitive and highly significant to us Aboriginal people, as our people lived within the area for thousands of years. We care for mother earth and all that she provides, with her rich flora and fauna that thrives in this area. The water ways in which we have a deep connection to as they provide us with resources and hold spiritual connection to the water and the stories they hold. We would like to agree to your methodology and we look forward to working along side you on this project.

Dear Darleen,

Re: Warehouse and Distribution Centre Development Aldington Road, Kemps Creek: Proposed ACHAR Methodology

Thank you for registering as a stakeholder for the proposed development of the warehouse and distribution centre. I am looking forward to working with you on this project. Included below are details of the project, and the proposed assessment methodology for your review.

1.1 Proposed Development

Icon Oceania Kemps Development are proposing the development of land, which is currently known as Lot 9, DP 253503, being 253-267 Aldington Road, Kemps Creek in the Penrith City Council Local Government Area (LGA).

This proposed development comprises of a warehouse and distribution centre within Lot 9 and external services infrastructure outside of Lot 9. It is intended that the proposal will be assessed as a State Significant Development (SSD) under the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979 (EP & A Act).

1.2 Background

Icon Oceania Kemps Development have requested the Planning Secretary's Environmental Assessment Requirements (SEARs) for the preparation of an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) for the proposed development.

The project SEARs have yet to be issued. However it is anticipated that the project will require the preparation of an Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Assessment Report (ACHAR) be prepared in accordance with the Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Consultation Requirements for Proponents (DECCW 2010) for inclusion in the EIS.

1.3 Proposed Assessment Methodology

The ACHAR will be completed in accordance with the relevant guidelines:

- Guide to Investigating, Assessing, and Reporting on Aboriginal Cultural Heritage in NSW (OEH 2011)
- Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Consultation Requirements for Proponents (DECCW 2010)
- Code of Practice for Archaeological Investigation of Aboriginal Objects in New South Wales (OEH 2010)

As part of the ACHAR, comprehensive consultation is being undertaken in accordance with Section 80C of the National Parks and Wildlife Act 2009. The initial stages of the consultation process have been completed, and a list of Registered Aboriginal Parties (RAPs) has been compiled. The present letter provides project information and the proposed assessment methodology for review.

An archaeological survey was completed for the study area on 19 May 2021. The objectives of the survey were:

- Assess the Aboriginal cultural heritage values of the study area
- Identify Aboriginal archaeological and cultural heritage values that may be impacted by the proposed works
- Identify any further investigations, and mitigation and management measures that may be required, should the project proceed.

A draft copy of the ACHAR will be sent out for your review, prior to finalisation of the document. If you would like to comment on the Aboriginal cultural heritage values of the study area or the proposed methodology, please provide your response by 05 August 2021. Please address your response to me at:

John Sokalik

Or via email: john.sokalik@artefact.net.au

In your response, please consider the following points:

- Do you know of any objects or places of value to Aboriginal people in the study area or locality?
- Are there any protocols for managing cultural information that you would like incorporated into the assessment methodology?
- Are there any access requirements or restrictions that should be applied to the information you are providing?

Thank you very much for your involvement in the project. If you require any additional information, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Dear Sir or Madam,

Re: Proposed development at 253-267 Aldington Road, Kemps Creek: Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Assessment Report

Artefact Heritage has been engaged by RP Infrastructure (the proponent) to prepare an updated Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Assessment Report (ACHAR) for the property known as 253-267 Aldington Rd, Kemps Creek (Lot 9/DP253503) (the study area, Figure 1) in advance of proposed development. The study area is located within the Penrith City Council Local Government Area (LGA) and lies within the boundaries of the Deerubbin Local Aboriginal Local Council (LALC).

The proponent is proposing staged construction and operation of an industrial estate, including demolition and removal of existing structures, construction of four warehouses, ancillary signage and car parking, landscaping and various service and utility infrastructure. In 2021 Artefact Heritage provided Root Partners Infrastructure with an ACHAR for the proposal. Updates to this ACHAR are now required to address detailed design modifications and to include updated consultation with Aboriginal stakeholders after a period of more than 6 months.

The proponent will be seeking Development Consent under Division 4.7 of the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979 as a State Significant Development (SSD). The updated ACHAR will be prepared to address the Secretary's Environmental Assessment Requirements (SEARs) issued for the project (SSD-23480429) dated 30 July 2021 and additional SEARs issued on 25 March 2022. The ACHAR will be prepared in accordance with the Guide to investigating, assessing and reporting on Aboriginal Cultural Heritage in NSW (OEH 2011). Preparation of the ACHAR will include community consultation in accordance with the Aboriginal cultural heritage consultation requirements for proponents 2010 (DECCW 2010).

In accordance with these requirements and as part of the assessment process, the proponent would like to consult with any Aboriginal persons or organisations that hold cultural knowledge relevant to determining the significance of Aboriginal objects and places in the locality of the project. The purpose of community consultation is to assist the proponent in identifying and describing the Aboriginal cultural heritage values within the proposal area and aid in the documentation of these values in the environmental assessment.

Parcel Identifiers

In most jurisdictions please identify parcels using lot on plan, or lot/section/plan as appropriate. The NNTT is generally not able to identify parcels using land title information. Where possible, the NNTT uses the terminology and formatting of unique identifiers used in each state to uniquely identify a land parcel. More details are below:

1. Lot on plan. Use for Western Australia and Queensland.
2. Lot/Section/Plan. Use for New South Wales.
3. LAISKEY. Use for the Northern Territory. The laiskey is a unique identifier for each parcel comprised of the location code, LTO code (derived from the survey plan) where applicable and the parcel number.
4. Parcel ID – Use for South Australia. Concatenation of Parcel Type, Parcel, Plan Type and Plan.
5. SPI (Standard Parcel Identifier) – Use for Victoria.

Terms and Conditions

1. Specify only one jurisdiction (e.g. Queensland) and one type of tenure (e.g. mining tenement) per form. You can add up to 20 separate tenements or parcels per search request. For more than 20 parcels or tenements please submit additional search requests or contact GeospatialSearch@NNTT.gov.au to discuss your requirements.

Note: if your area of interest cannot be clearly identified from the search form, or is not held in NNTT datasets, we may instead provide search results for a surrounding local government area, or other suitable regional area.

2. Freehold land.

Under the Native Title Act 1993 (Cth), the valid grant of a freehold estate (other than certain types of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander land) on or before 23 December 1996 is known as a 'previous exclusive possession act'. This means that native title has been extinguished over the area. Native title claimants are not allowed to include land and waters covered by previous exclusive possession acts in their applications; therefore they would normally exclude freehold areas. A native title application may, however, be made over freehold land on the basis that freehold was invalidly granted, but the chances of this happening are very low.

3. Cultural Heritage in NSW.

The National Native Title Tribunal has undertaken steps to remove itself from the formal list of sources for information about indigenous groups in development areas. The existence or otherwise of native title is quite separate to any matters relating to Aboriginal cultural heritage. Information on native title claims, native title determinations and Indigenous Land Use Agreements is available on the Tribunal's website.

4. Spatial searches rely on data obtained from the relevant custodian. Whilst efforts are taken to update such datasets on a regular basis, the collection and interpretation of such datasets may be influenced by a number of factors that can impact of the completeness and accuracy of your search results.

Dear Sir or Madam,

Re: Proposed development at 253-267 Aldington Road, Kemps Creek: Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Assessment Report

Artefact Heritage has been engaged by RP Infrastructure (the proponent) to prepare an updated Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Assessment Report (ACHAR) for the property known as 253-267 Aldington Rd, Kemps Creek (Lot 9/DP253503) (the study area, Figure 1) in advance of proposed development. The study area is located within the Penrith City Council Local Government Area (LGA) and lies within the boundaries of the Deerubbin Local Aboriginal Local Council (LALC).

The proponent is proposing staged construction and operation of an industrial estate, including demolition and removal of existing structures, construction of four warehouses, ancillary signage and car parking, landscaping and various service and utility infrastructure. In 2021 Artefact Heritage provided Root Partners Infrastructure with an ACHAR for the proposal. Updates to this ACHAR are now required to address detailed design modifications and to include updated consultation with Aboriginal stakeholders after a period of more than 6 months.

The proponent will be seeking Development Consent under Division 4.7 of the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979 as a State Significant Development (SSD). The updated ACHAR will be prepared to address the Secretary's Environmental Assessment Requirements (SEARs) issued for the project (SSD-23480429) dated 30 July 2021 and additional SEARs issued on 25 March 2022. The ACHAR will be prepared in accordance with the Guide to investigating, assessing and reporting on Aboriginal Cultural Heritage in NSW (OEH 2011). Preparation of the ACHAR will include community consultation in accordance with the Aboriginal cultural heritage consultation requirements for proponents 2010 (DECCW 2010).

In accordance with these requirements and as part of the assessment process, the proponent would like to consult with any Aboriginal persons or organisations that hold cultural knowledge relevant to determining the significance of Aboriginal objects and places in the locality of the project. The purpose of community consultation is to assist the proponent in identifying and describing the Aboriginal cultural heritage values within the proposal area and aid in the documentation of these values in the environmental assessment.

Dear Sir or Madam,

Re: Proposed development at 253-267 Aldington Road, Kemps Creek: Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Assessment Report

Artefact Heritage has been engaged by RP Infrastructure (the proponent) to prepare an updated Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Assessment Report (ACHAR) for the property known as 253-267 Aldington Rd, Kemps Creek (Lot 9/DP253503) (the study area, Figure 1) in advance of proposed development. The study area is located within the Penrith City Council Local Government Area (LGA) and lies within the boundaries of the Deerubbin Local Aboriginal Local Council (LALC).

The proponent is proposing staged construction and operation of an industrial estate, including demolition and removal of existing structures, construction of four warehouses, ancillary signage and car parking, landscaping and various service and utility infrastructure. In 2021 Artefact Heritage provided Root Partners Infrastructure with an ACHAR for the proposal. Updates to this ACHAR are now required to address detailed design modifications and to include updated consultation with Aboriginal stakeholders after a period of more than 6 months.

The proponent will be seeking Development Consent under Division 4.7 of the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979 as a State Significant Development (SSD). The updated ACHAR will be prepared to address the Secretary's Environmental Assessment Requirements (SEARs) issued for the project (SSD-23480429) dated 30 July 2021 and additional SEARs issued on 25 March 2022. The ACHAR will be prepared in accordance with the Guide to investigating, assessing and reporting on Aboriginal Cultural Heritage in NSW (OEH 2011). Preparation of the ACHAR will include community consultation in accordance with the Aboriginal cultural heritage consultation requirements for proponents 2010 (DECCW 2010).

In accordance with these requirements and as part of the assessment process, the proponent would like to consult with any Aboriginal persons or organisations that hold cultural knowledge relevant to determining the significance of Aboriginal objects and places in the locality of the project. The purpose of community consultation is to assist the proponent in identifying and describing the Aboriginal cultural heritage values within the proposal area and aid in the documentation of these values in the environmental assessment.

Good afternoon Bengi,
Ethan Trewlynn of Long Gully Cultural Services.

Thank you for the email,
I'd like to put in about the area there I've been highly involved in a lot of projects within the Kemps Creek and surrounding areas.
On Mamre Rd there has been a lot of artefacts found roughly in-between 20,000-40,000 artefacts which was from one project.
There has been farming and all sorts of agriculture in the area over 100s of years.
The hills that you can see overlooking Aldington Road and Mamre road are looking directly at water sources and food sources for the Darug people.
I'd also like to say I'm happy with everything that I've read so far on my end.

Thank you so much for your email Bengi,
Kind regards
Ethan Trewlynn of Long Gully Cultural Services.
