

Major Sport Event Overlay

For Major Events, such as international games involving the Australian teams in the major rectangular codes, where demand is likely to exceed stadium capacity, the stadium precinct has been designed to have the capability of Live Sites being installed.

A temporary secure perimeter can be established to provide:

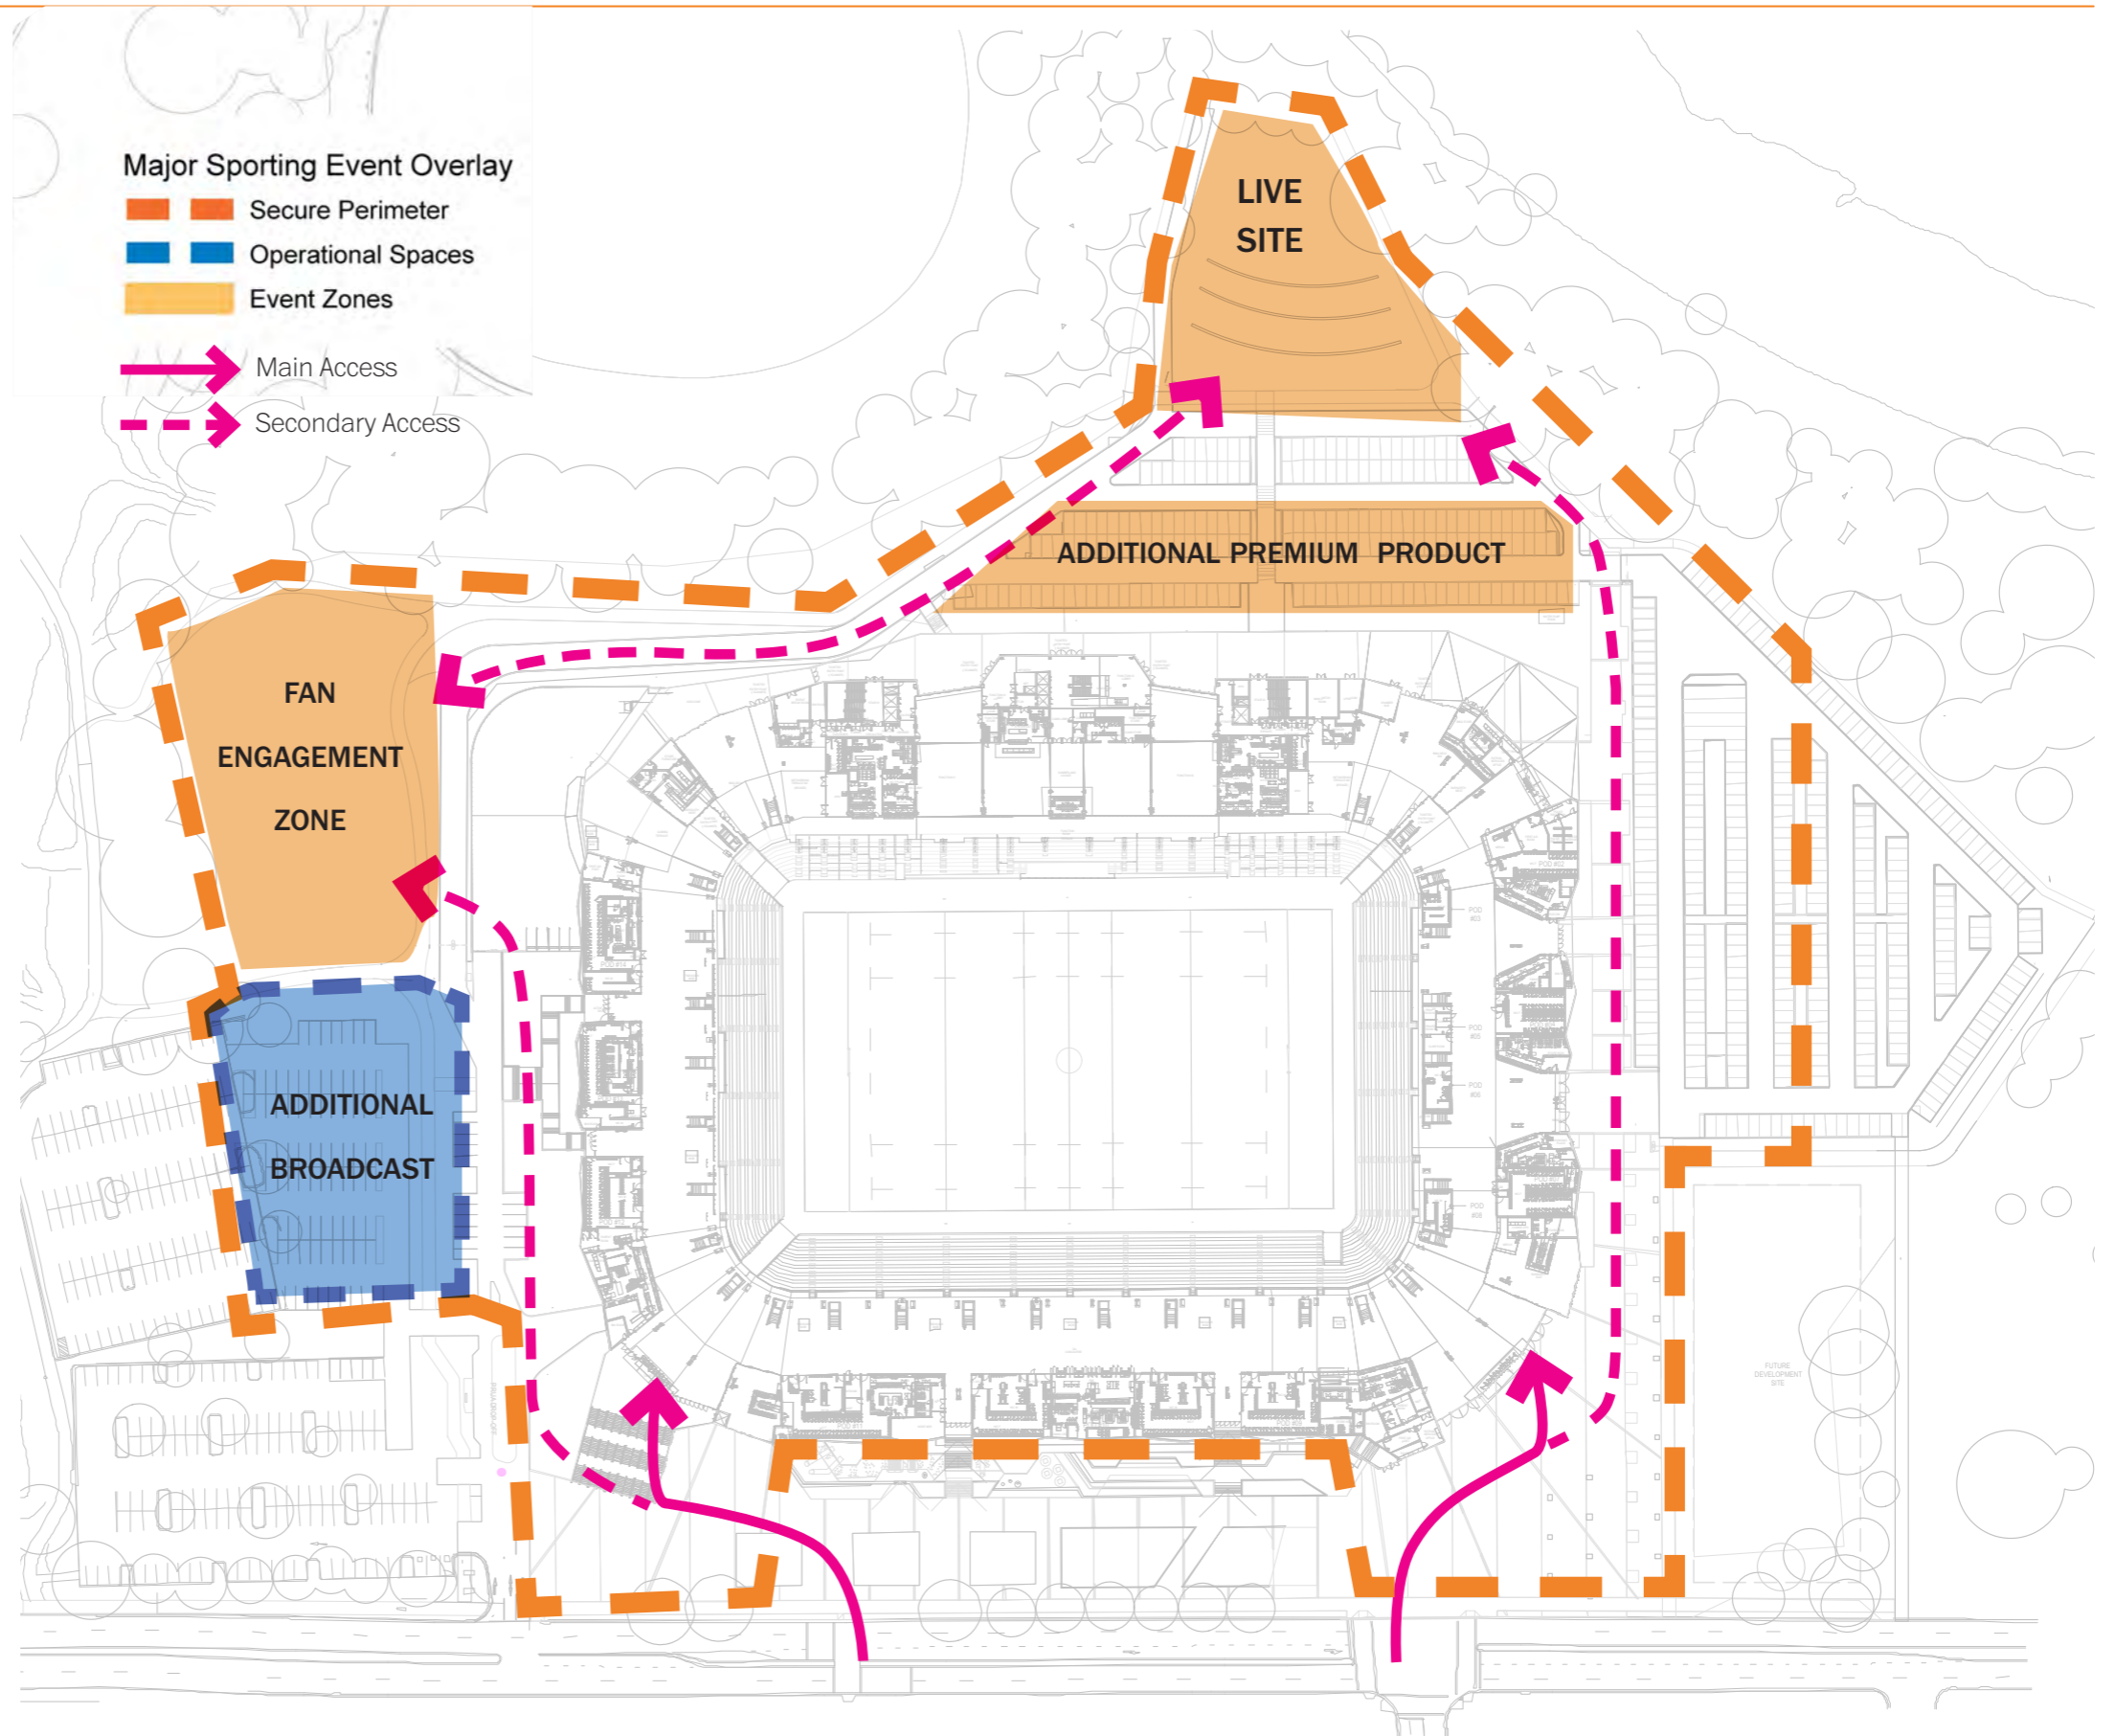

- Additional security for the event;
- Security screening of all staff, goods and spectators entering the secure perimeter;
- Additional broadcast capacity in the south car park;
- Live sites- to the west looking over the park and river;
- Fan engagement zone to the south on the old training field; and
- Potential for additional PP in marquees on the west car park.

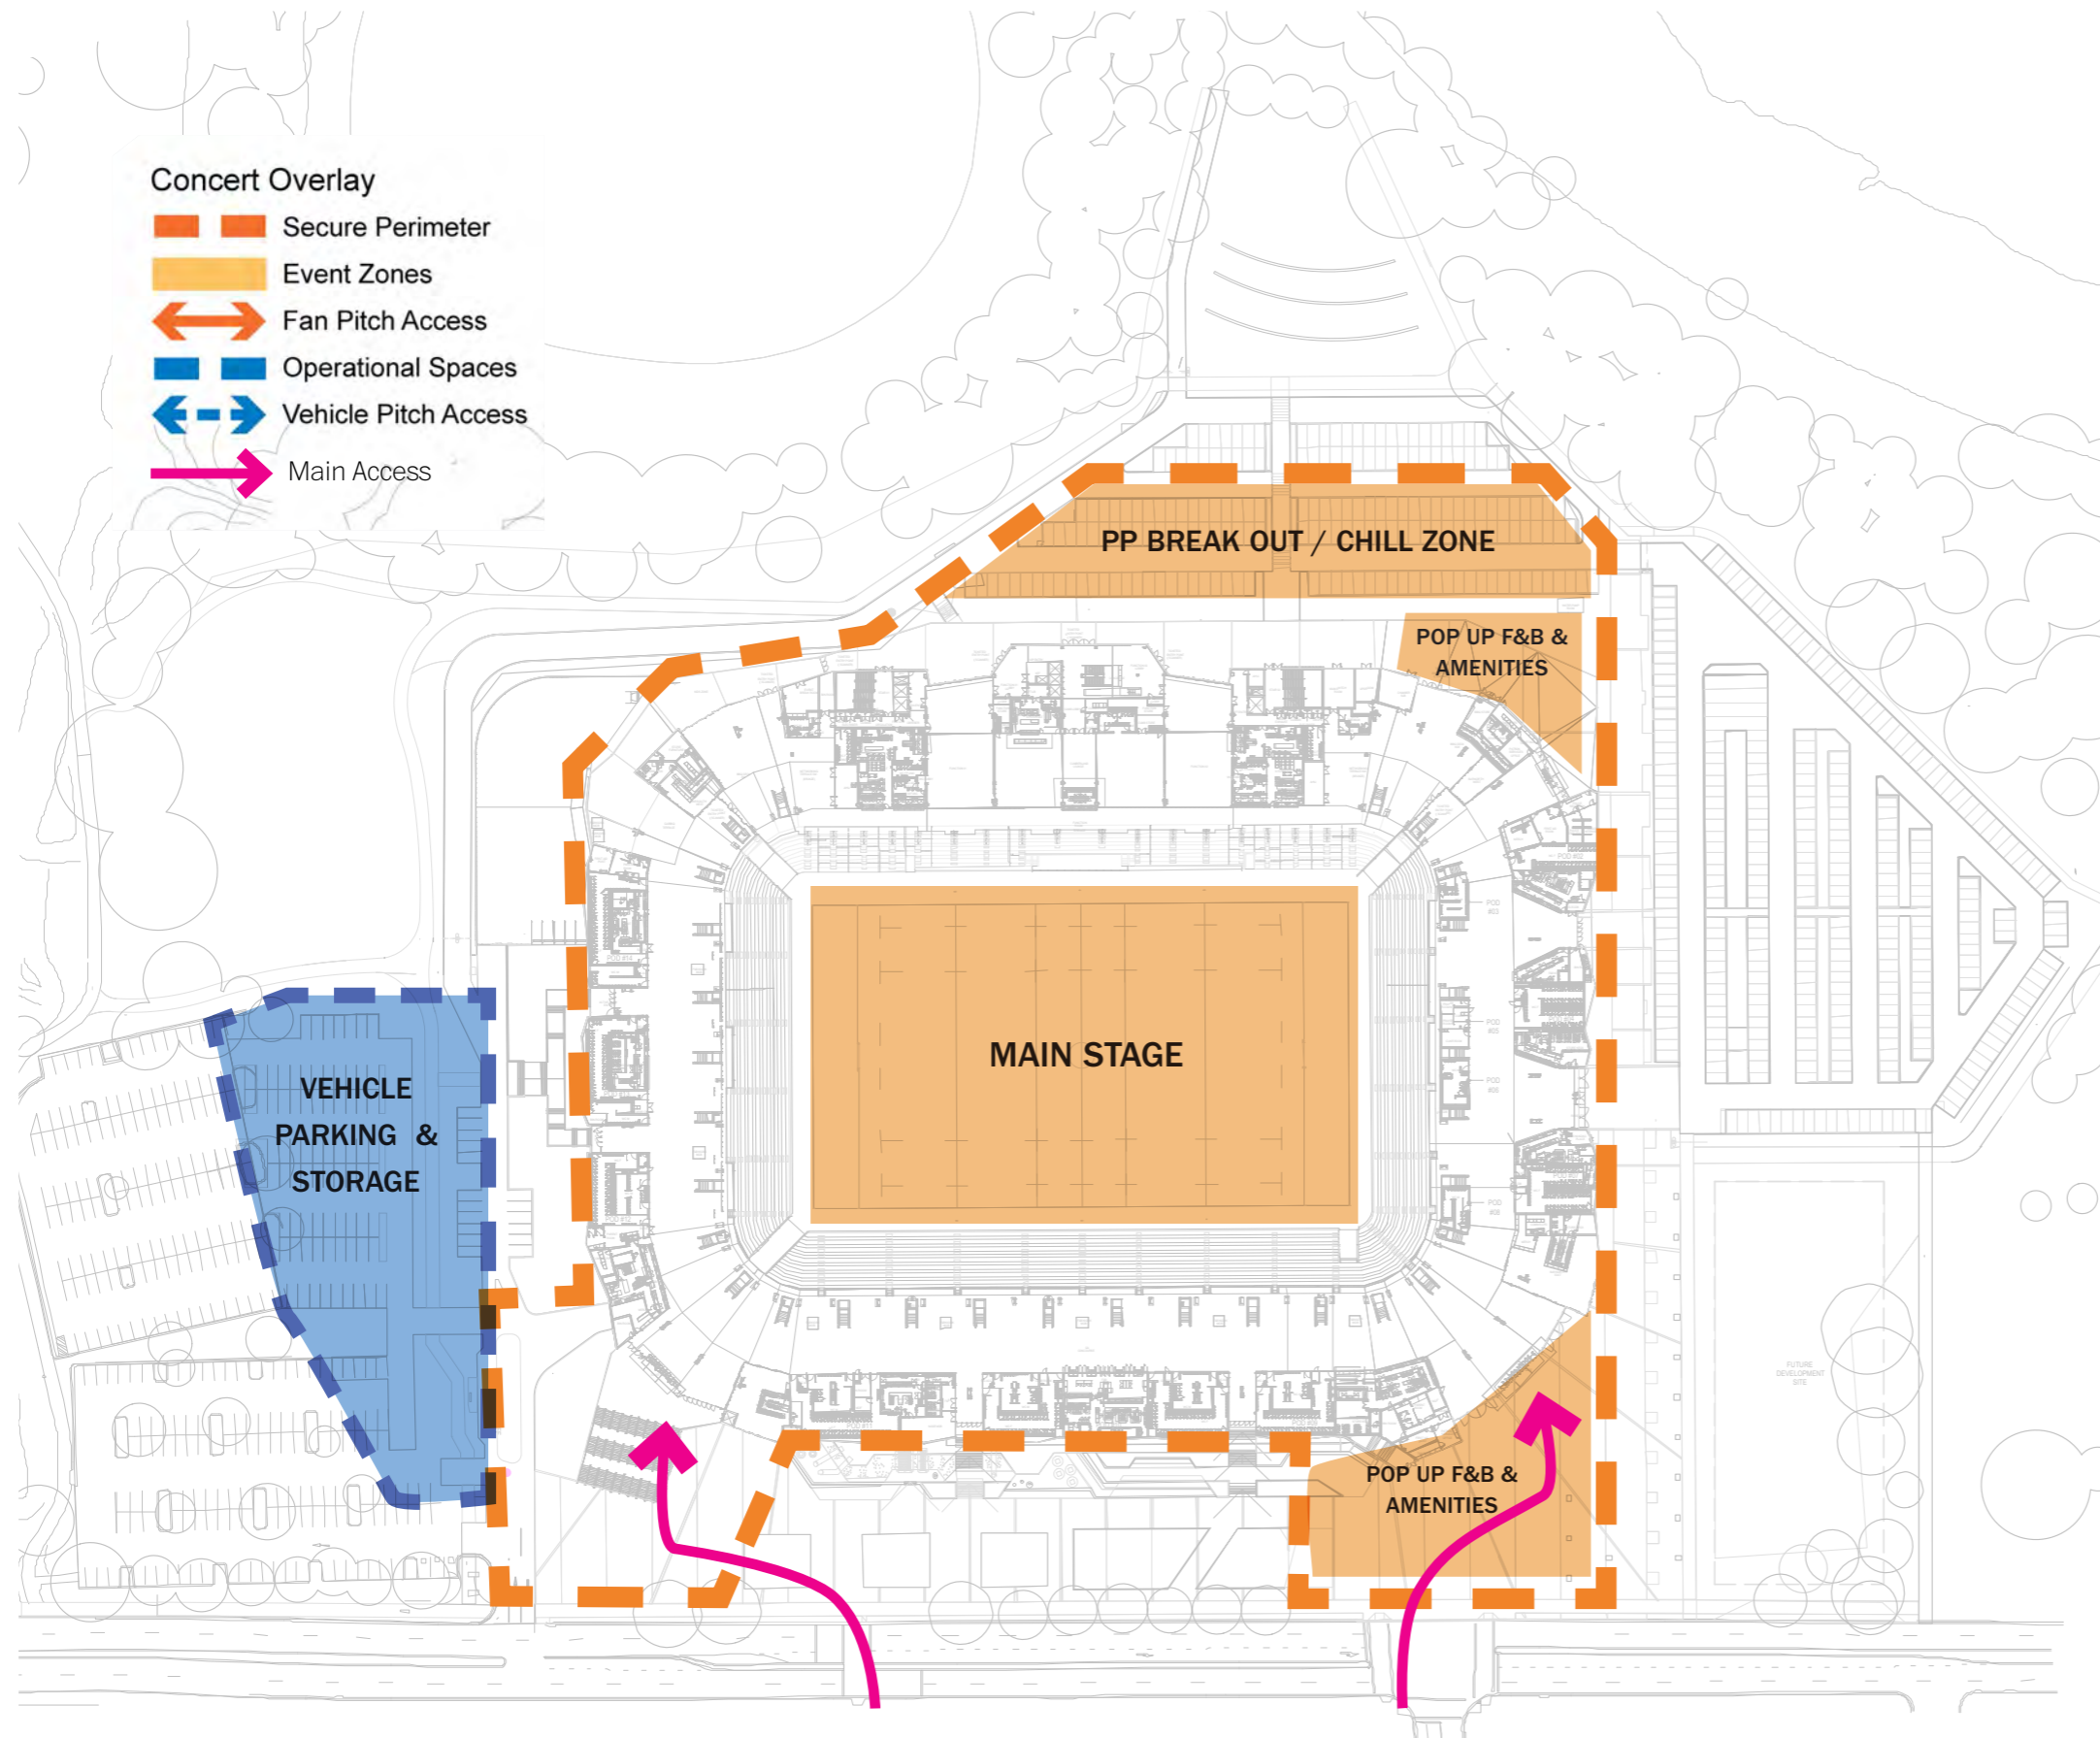

These areas could be activated by the use of temporary screens, and the provision of temporary toilets and concessions, thus increasing site capacity, providing additional atmosphere around the stadium, and providing commercial benefits to the stadium operators.

Major Sport Event Overlay

During a Major Sporting Event the access is per the main access strategy.

- Pedestrian access is via the two main connections on O'Connell street;
- The Fan Engagement Zone is accessed via the pathways on the southern edge of the stadium
- The Live Site is accessed via the Northern Boulevard

Concert Overlay

Concerts provide lucrative additional revenue streams for stadium operators, but music events place different demands and operational challenges that sporting events don't.

Sporting events are based on an assumed demographic and gender mix, based on precedent. Concerts however are less straight forward to define, due to the nature of the performer, and their unique fan base. The stadium design must be flexible to cater for this, providing areas around the stadium where appropriate facilities can be bumped in for music events:

- West car park used as a PP 'break out and chill' zone;
- South car park, part used for concert vehicle parking, additional storage;
- North east and east used for additional temporary pop-up food and beverage and additional toilet facilities; and
- The south east pitch access vomitory, whilst primarily for egress, can provide a means for fans to move to and from the pitch level to outside open air and the facilities to the east.

Vehicle access to the field of play for the concert stage set up is via the southern service road, into the south western pitch vomitory, and out the south eastern pitch vomitory.
