Hi Alex,

- There is insufficient time in the current network to extend routes into the hospital grounds to the proposed bus stop
- If capacity refers to physical space on buses, then the answer would be in most situations, yes. This would be very much dependent on individual trips, and time of day.
- Should TfNSW deem that it is appropriate to operate buses up to the main bus stop in the hospital grounds, then in my estimation, it would happen. The likelihood of this happening would still be somewhat dependent on overall network impacts, and associated costs.
- Selected trips could be diverted into the hospital rather than all trips on any future route/s

Is this sufficient for your requirements?

Thanks,

Dave

Subject: Macksville Hospital

Hi Dave and Mal,

Hope you're well.

I've received a request from the Department of Planning to request advice on behalf of Busways in relation to the new Macksville Hospital site.

Notwithstanding the change in routes would need to be considered carefully and directed by Transport for New South Wales, could you please advise whether Busways have in principal 'capacity' in the existing bus services to accommodate the demand from the new Macksville Hospital Development, and 'the impact of any future modification to the existing bus routes to service the new Macksville Hospital Development could be manageable and that services can be appropriately modified in the future?

Kind regards,

Alex
