To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing in support of the Bluestone Hardrock Quarry proposal. As a fourth-generation dairy farmer from Scotts Flat currently employing 22 people, I understand the importance of balancing productive agriculture with responsible industry. Our rural communities rely on practical, sustainable businesses that create local employment, strengthen regional economies and provide the essential materials that our regions, need to continue growing.

Bluestone Hardrock will supply high-quality, durable aggregate used in concrete production, road construction and major infrastructure projects. These materials are fundamental to building and maintaining homes, schools, hospitals, transport networks and are important to the maintenance of our own Dairy operations and infrastructure. We along with the surrounding community benefit from reliable access to these resources and sourcing them locally helps reduce transport distances while supporting regional jobs and investment.

Having lived and worked on the land for generations, I appreciate the importance of responsible land stewardship. I believe well-managed resource projects and agriculture can successfully coexist when they are developed with appropriate environmental safeguards and ongoing community engagement.

The proposed quarry represents an opportunity to support regional employment, local businesses and the long-term supply of construction materials that are critical to Australia's future infrastructure needs. I believe these benefits extend well beyond our local area and will contribute positively to both the regional and broader Australian economy.

For these reasons, I respectfully support the Bluestone Hardrock Quarry proposal and encourage its approval.

Yours sincerely,

John Redgrove
