Bowdens Mine proposal to source all its water requirements from the site is totally unrealistic. We have not had a reliable supply of precipitation over the last 30 years . This is supported by local rain records .

Bowdens Mine would also place further environmental stress on what is a very stressed water system, the Lawson Creek. The creek does not flow in dry spells, placing additional pressure for water users in dry periods.

And further more the impact on bores is considerable. To pump large amounts of water from underground water table could affect not only the Lue area but areas further away as water levels would decrease.

Bowdens Mine would definitely be unable to obtain sufficient water on site to Run their mine
