Who exactly is advising this Government- what are the Arts Bureaucrats telling the Government. The current CEO WHO IS SPECTACULARLY UNQUALIFIED TO BE IN THIS JOB SEEMS TO BE CALLING ALL THE SHOTS,AND ALL PROTESTATIONS BY EXPERIENCED MUSEUM PEOPLE ARE TOTALLY IGNORED. I am ashamed to have voted for this Government as I thought they were going to support retention of the Powerhouse as it has been for 35 years- after the cultural vandalism of the previous Government"

Seems like selling land to developers is more important than keeping iconic sites and the characteristics of what we know and remember as Ultimo."

17	Long Jetty		2261	Australia	28-Dec-23	"What the state governments have done to this cultural icon is disgusting. Sydney isn't a world class city...it's a backwoods outpost run by crooks who plan to take advantage however they can."
18	erskineville	New South Wales	2043	Australia	28-Dec-23	"The Powerhouse is a beautiful museum that should remain where it is for all to enjoy. If removed the building will become expensive apartments that we don't need"
19			2038	Australia	28-Dec-23	"We all know that the space will be used for more high density, expensive apartments with retail at ground level, which, as Sydney-siders who enjoy the city as it is, do not want or need. No more foreign investment! Leave our museum where it has been for over 100 yrs (in Ultimo) & use material from archives to create a new museum in the West. It's not rocket science."

20			2203	Australia	28-Dec-23	"I see no reason why a small area of the current building could not remain open during the entire renovation. This would be a clear signal that the Powerhouse Museum is here to stay; as it should be! The Powerhouse Museum needs protection from rapacious property developers who have had the ear (and other parts?) of LNP people going back years. With a change of government; the same considerations apply to ALP people. For me, alarms started going off when the Baird Government said in 2014 that the Powerhouse Museum was to be moved to Parramatta. My personal BS Detector went off-scale briefly! I could comment on the milkcrate-on-a-floodplain in Parramatta; and the regrettable, egregious, and dishonest destruction of "Willow Grove". I urge people to seek out anything written by Kylie Winkworth regarding the Powerhouse Museum. She wrote several articles for City Hub which now resides at: https://cityhub.com.au/ [Was formerly at: www.altmedia.net.au but is no longer there]. In one article by Alex Smart on 19 February 2019 the ALP's Arts Spokesperson described the proposed new building as a "monstrosity on stilts" and I am not inclined to disagree with that apt description."

24			2753	Australia	29-Dec-23	"It is against the public interest, and does not pass the pub test. To have no internationally recognised applied arts and science museum unavailable for some years just does not make sense."

It must not be morphed into a contemporary arts and entertainment venue. The so-called 'heritage revitalisation' is a farce with no respect for the Museum's heritage: its purpose, precinct, buildings and collection. "Ultimo should be a museum of NSW's diverse cultures and a safe place for object learning for families, a showcase for our inspiring and nationally significant collections and our cultures. The ALP should have its own vision and strategy for the Powerhouse Museum that includes collaboration with, and participation in our multicultural communities, to care for our diverse collections and tell our stories and to help fight the rise of Islamophobia and Anti-Semitism. It should also support First Nations people to care for country and maintain culture and lore through their collections. The poor response to the Voice in NSW is in part a failure of NSW public museums to mediate the histories of First Nations people and a disconnect with communities including Western Sydney and rural and regional ones. The former NSW Migration Heritage Centre and Communities Gallery were based at Ultimo and popular including with Western Sydney communities and rural visitors. Both have vanished. There is still no NSW immigration museum. Diversity Arts Australia has highlighted the whiteness of NSW's cultural sector including museums. The Government should honour its election promise to save the Powerhouse Museum at Ultimo. NSW is now a decade behind Victoria in its management of public museums and heritage collections - a generation of school children has been deprived of culture and learning in the Powerhouse Museum at Ultimo already. They shouldn't need to visit Melbourne or Canberra to attend a major public museum or head south to Multicultural Museums Victoria's six ethnic, culture and faith-based museums to learn about their histories and to share pride in their diverse cultures through collections and associated programs in secure and safe public galleries. Don't close Ultimo for at least 3 years, it has lost its community collections heart for a decade already. Aim higher. Ultimo should remain open. It's not difficult to bring its collections heart back. John Petersen, CEO Multicultural Museums Victoria www.mmv.org.au"

It is of immense concern that a Labor Government has demonstrated a lack of commitment to the preservation and access to this history and hereitage and has not kept its election promises."
55	Lilyfield		2040	Australia	01-Jan-24	"I don't want the museum mothballed with the real prospect of not re-opening for many years. My grandchildren love visiting the PH, it's the only one of it's kind in Sydney"

57			2042	Australia	02-Jan-24	"The Powerhouse Museum is an irreplaceable part of Sydney's cultural heritage. The Minns Government promised to save the Powerhouse Museum and keep it open. Instead the museum is being de-funded and stripped of its collections, assets and expert staff in the greatest secrecy so the former museum can be turned into an arts, entertainment and venue hire business. This is the end of a museum that was purpose designed to display the transport, power and engineering collections in the conceptually and spatially resonant spaces of the former power station. It's goodbye to the trains, planes and automobiles, and the steam engines working under live steam. These collections will never return to the PHM. Please visit the museum in the coming month. See Leo Schofield's 1001 Remarkable Objects exhibition and ask why is this museum closing? Who benefits? Take a last look before a great public museum is emptied of its collections and turned into a cultural crime scene."

66	Sydney		1001	Australia	03-Jan-24	"there has been nine years of waste and mismanagement by successive governments on secret business plans and unnecessary rebrandings which could have revitalised not only the Powerhouse Museum in Ultimo but the entire local government regional museums sector. If the Powerhouse Museum closed in February 2024 there will be nothing left but an empty shell. The subsequent facility under construction at Parramatta will also fail to fill the void left by the dismantling of the Museum of Applied Arts and Sciences. NSW is a poorer State because of nine years of waste."
67	Sydney		2114	Australia	03-Jan-24	"It is an absolute nonsense to strip out the extremely large items that are well displayed and preserved such as the steam train, James Watt steam engine and the aeroplanes. It is also a nonsense to close the Ultimo Powerhouse Museum while the new Parramatta Powerhouse Museum is still being built and years from opening. The Powerhouse board are a shambles. They should have stood up for the Ultimo Powerhouse from the start when the Liberal government tried to abolish it so that they could sell off the site to developers. If board members aren't going to defend The Powerhouse Museum we love, they should resign."

70			2000	Australia	03-Jan-24	"It is deeply concerning to me, as someone who wishes to see the Powerhouse Museum in Ultimo retained as a museum of applied arts and sciences, that the "revitalisation" has not been fully funded and will not be completed during the current NSW Labor government. Why am I worried? It's too likely that the Liberals will get in and immediately take advantage of the fact that the museum is "closed for renovations" and reinstate their original plan to gift much of the site to developers. The rest will be gifted to the current Powerhouse CEO's pet project of providing a place for misfit, edgy creatives (like she was before she got a couple gallery management opportunities) who are ignored by mainstream art museums and galleries to "belong"... at the expense of de-emphasising the fusion of arts AND SCIENCES that is the internationally-known focus of the Powerhouse Museum. Please see NINE YEARS of content related to community efforts to save the museum, and multiple NSW governments' repeated attempts to destroy it, at http://www.powerhousemuseumalliance.com if you don't already know that there's an "off" smell to the years' of governments' interest in redeveloping the museum site despite strong community and worldwide museum expert objection to it. While Labor initially made an election promise to save the museum, including its focus on both the arts AND sciences, the recent developments don't back up that this is still their goal. The current plan just looks like a somewhat scaled-back version of the previous government's massive repurposing of the site. If the closure proceeds, Sydney (and the world) will lose a precious resource. Current leadership has little respect for historical collections, and simply wants to run a "culture hub", not a museum."

225	Cherrybrook		2126	Australia	02-Feb-24	"The founders of the PHM had S.T.E.A.M. education at the forefront of their vision. Years before the PHM first opened, plans were made public, plans for innovative, permanent exhibits which stood the test of time. This vision tied what was to be built with what was to be displayed, and made the powerhouse a destination museum of international standard. People from around the world put this place on the list of things to see when travelling to Sydney, with the steam engines and space and transport hall the parts people are most wanting to visit. If we were to loose those, it would be like the Louvre loosing Mona Lisa. Even today, with many of the iconic exhibits (Despite showing signs of wear and tear) the spaces within this museum continue to be loved by children and adults alike, with many making last minute visits, worried they won't be able to see it again. This is why so many former curators, directors and staff are so unhappy with the government's lack of clarity on this subject, especially with the lack of museum expertise on the current board. This museum needs a restoration after years of neglect, but we've been given no guarantee that during the closure, they won't just tear everything up, while out of the public eye. The fact that it's the same people who were in charge when the LNP wanted to kill off this museum does not paint a pretty picture. Plus, they're sacking a lot of the staff, including people with years and years of experience. These are the people who know most what parts of the museum actually needs work done on it, not a remote firm with little connection to the actual place."

253	Broomfield	Colorado	80020	US	05-Apr-24	"Why are you doing this?"
254			2226	Australia	06-Apr-24	"This valuable and important Museum should be re-opened as soon as possible. This supposed "renovation" seems a smokescreen. Is the agenda really to renovate it, or to redevelop this priceless piece of real estate for housing towers?"
255	Sydney		2000	Australia	14-May-24	"It just makes sense to keep the museum open as long as possible. So, please Mr John Graham, Minister for the Arts, honour your promises. Thank you."

256	Sydney		NSW 2026	Australia	15-May-24	"The Powerhouse is a world class asset available to all. Closing it down for work which can be accomplished while it is continuing to provide visitors both local and international with access to its unique collections and information about current and historic perspectives, is a tragedy and a gross mistake by this government. Relocating part of the collection to a flood prone location is also a very poor decision, endangering the collections. Save the Powerhouse!"
257			2536	Australia	16-May-24	"I believe the Powerhouse Museum should be retained in its present internationally recognised form. The museum should not be closed down for any length of time in order to pander to NSW Labor's lack of interest in cultural heritage."
258	Palm Beach		2800	Australia	17-May-24	"I learned of the powerhouse museum via unique historical buildings info and intended to visit when next in Sydney."
