

The project supports hundreds of workers directly and indirectly (many live in the local area), and delivers millions of dollars to the local and state economies.