I think this mine should not include the area that is known as The Drip in any mine proposal. It is of high conservation value and more so specifically in relation to native people of a high spiritual value. The spiritual value of the Drip is equal to any great chapel church or temple anywhere in the world.

It was a mistake for the Government to allow it to be sold off the public estate and this mistake should be rectified. Nothing less than putting it inside the Goulburn River National Park is required.

I call on the mine proponent to do this as a precursor to any mining that would damage the area that surrounds the drip. That area should at least be the original area that was outside the park and that contained the drip. To not do this is to be in concert with the Government in theft from the public of this area and the label of vandals in the wanton destruction of the drip.
