

The Panthers Group enthusiastically endorses Crown Sydney as a landmark project with far-reaching benefits in terms of jobs, training and Indigenous education.

The luxury hotel resort at Barangaroo on Sydney Harbour will attract thousands of international tourists to the city and create more than 1200 jobs for the people of Sydney.

Crown Melbourne's successful in-house training college will be replicated in Redfern and Penrith – providing long-term jobs and employment opportunities for the residents of Western Sydney and the Blue Mountains.

The Penrith-based college will work with local TAFEs and schools to provide an extensive apprenticeship and schools-based traineeship program.

The Panthers Group embraces any initiative to enhance education and employment opportunities in the region, and there is no doubting the life-changing, positive impact this project will have on the young people of Western Sydney.

Panthers also applauds the planned delivery of Indigenous employment programs for hospitality areas of the resort, including pre-employment and traineeships with local schools, and would welcome the opportunity to be involved.
