there is no clear indication of the development proposal.I could not locate draw ings w hcih show the extent of the works being proposed.How do you identify w hat the extent of the existing work is and w hat is being proposed.A simple plan w ould provide the most clearest picture.One that does not require extensive details but w ill communicate the idea quickly.One that w ill also identify its location and w hat is surrounding the proposal.Otherw ise w ho w ould no w hat w as going on?This w ould also identify if there are additional facilities w hich w ould be required due to the works.Given that there may be more employees w ould certainly impact on the car parking,amenities and traffic issues.Would hours of operation be changed?Most importantly w hat is the lifespan of he works and w hat are the rectification procedures once the work has been completed.ie are w e looking at work for the next 2,5,20years.Once the work has been completed does the applicant just abandon the work and w alk aw ay.Will this result in future environmental issues,site contamination,subsistence,gas buildup etc...Is there a possible future reuse of the facilities.

How does the information supplied on donations impact on this development.(besides being a mandatory requirement)How does it impact on the approval of this development.?Are the council or person approving(assessing) the project providing statements also.ie w hat religious backround,citizenship etc..The fact that they have been disclosed show s that they are generous people....I imagine.

The environmental statement needs further clarification and elaboration.Have they complied w ith the current epa requirements?

Mining is considered to be part of the australian asset.As such how do w e locally benefit ,both long term and short term.Understandably the locals are being employed but is it adding back into the community.Do the resorces stay in australia?etc.Are they employing any apprentices?What does the government provide if any in assistance?.....Your w ritten reply to these issues w ould be welcomed .Your earnest comments and not legal ,planning or political rhetoric w ould provide some hounest and sincerity in your reply.
