

A black and white line drawing of a dense urban environment. The scene is composed of numerous geometric shapes, primarily rectangles and squares, representing buildings of various heights and styles. On the left side, a tall, slender skyscraper with a grid-like facade rises prominently. To its right, there are several shorter, more complex structures with multiple levels and protrusions. In the foreground, a variety of smaller, more modern-looking buildings are scattered across a grid-like base, suggesting a city street layout. The drawing uses simple black lines on a white background, creating a stylized, architectural representation of a cityscape.
