

SOUTH32 ILLAWARRA:

OUR CONTRIBUTION

South32 operates the Dendrobium and Appin Mines. Both are underground operations in New South Wales and produce coal for steel.

Mining makes a significant contribution to the local area. We directly employ 1,800 people and are the main supplier to the Port Kembla Steelworks.

Coal is the State's largest single source of export revenue and the industry employs some 25,000 people across NSW.

In 2017-18 South32 Illawarra:

Directly employed 1,800 people, 90% of whom live locally

Purchased from around 400 local businesses

Spent > A$400m in the Illawarra region

Spent A$160 million with locally based suppliers

Contributed 3 cents per tonne to trusts that support local projects, in addition to South32 sponsorships and social investments

Supplied around 60% of BlueScope's coal needs

We are seeking approval to mine the next area of our Dendrobium Mine.

The coal reserves in the approved mining area will be depleted by 2024.

A development application has been made, and an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) prepared.

Continued mining would sustain the employment of Dendrobium's workforce, create additional jobs and ensure the supply of coal for steel to local and overseas customers until 2048.

Our mines have operated in the Illawarra for 85 years, producing coal for steel. We are currently applying to continue operations at the Dendrobium Mine beyond 2024.

The Dendrobium Project would:

Support the ongoing employment of 500 people

Create 200 jobs during construction

Sustain an essential supply to BlueScope Port Kembla Steelworks

Net economic benefit
>A$2.8 billion to New South Wales

Contribute A$714 million in royalties, taxes and rates

Support the ongoing viability of the Port Kembla Coal Terminal
